Painting Stucco a New Way

Answers to questions about new "Dutch Boy" Nalcrete

Q. What new development has eliminated the problems generally found in painting stucco?

A. "Dutch Boy" Nalcrete, a remarkable new polymer type paint that gives absolute color uniformity the instant you put it on stucco; holds its beauty for years—because it's self-sealing and resistant to weather.

Q. How can you avoid "lap marks" with Nalcrete?

A. Literally, you couldn't make a lap mark if you tried. Paint a section, let it dry, start again with a 6-inch overlap. When this dries, you can't tell where you started painting again.

Q. Is Nalcrete an oil base paint?

A. No; and that's good... if there is active alkali present as in new stucco. Ordinary oil paint reacts with alkali to form a type of "soap." In hard rain the "soap" washes off, taking the finish with it. Nalcrete is absolutely alkali resistant! Good even on newly-set cement.

Q. How soon can you put on a second coat?

A. You can actually paint the second coat the same day as the first. Nalcrete will dry in two hours and look beautiful from the moment you put it on.

Q. How does rain affect Nalcrete?

A. It has no effect except to give your home a good washing! Dirt, dust and other stains and streaks will wash off completely, leaving the surface clean as the day it was painted.

Q. Is Nalcrete available in colors as well as in white?

A. Yes! A wide range of Western colors and intermixes from the "Dutch Boy" Color Gallery.
