dustry. We offer you the services of our committee to assist you at any time."

Sam Levy, prominent local business man, supported Plomert's plea. "A five-cent cut won't hurt you," Levy said.

"We used to brag that we had the second lowest rate in the county; now it is the second highest.

"Assessed valuations are going up, too, and I know of one instance in the Torrance business district where they have been jumped from $4900 up to $9100 in one year. I think the business sales tax in this city will raise the $17,000."
