Pinkney Gets Promotion; Officially Becomes Boss

There's no doubt about who's boss in the Robert Pinkney household at 361 Paseo de Gracia these days—at least as far as rank goes.

Robert and Mary Pinkney, both members of the local Civil Air Patrol unit, for a long time both held the rank of lieutenant. The situation however has been changed, since he was recently promoted to captain, thus outranking his pretty wife.

She didn't seem too unhappy about the situation, however, as she planted a big kiss on her husband at ceremonies awarding him the additional bar.

Wife Interested

A former Air Force B-24 pilot, Capt. Pinkney joined the CAP after he returned from the service and has been a member of the local unit for about four years. He owns his own plane. His wife became interested in flying, and has nearly completed requirements for a private pilot's license.

She now serves as public information officer for South Bay Squadron 43, of Long Beach Group 7, while her husband is coordinator of civil defense. He formerly served as commandant of cadets, public information officers, and executive officers.

Half of another husband-wife team also was promoted recently as Rex Hume, who was promoted to second lieutenant. His wife, Sgt. Margaret Hume is coordinator of women's activities.

Couples Team Up

Other couples "teaming up" in the local CAP units are Capt. Maurice Allman, commander, and Warrant Officer Elaine Allman, assistant adjutant; First Lt. Carl Shirley, transportation and 2nd Lt. Evelyn Shirley, personnel; First Lt. Joe Y. Martinez, flying safety, and Pvt. Jessie Martinez; Warrant Officer Grace Hoxworth, assistant commandant of cadets, and Sgt. Robert Hoxworth, training and development.

The motto of the squadron wives is : "If you can't beat them, join them."
