ON THE SCENE

By HANK WOLLMAN

In this year of 1958 Marlon Brando (with his emoting) and Eddie Fisher (with his crooning) will do their utmost to add the word "Sayonara" to the vocabulary of the American public.

This Japanese word for farewell may therefore join its brethren of previous years such as "Au Revoir", "Hasta La Vista", "Auf Weidersehen" and "A Rivederci". But this one oriental word should not be the limit of the public's education! Thus I am prompted to add a few more words which may prove not only educational, but personally beneficial . . .

KYOTO: this means a delightful oriental restaurant located on Western avenue in Gardena!

TATAMI: this is a dining room of Japanese decor with a matted floor, low table, floor cushions for comfortable seating and a sliding door for privacy. (Kyoto's has a regular dining area besides the Tatamis) Stop! You can't enter a Tatami until you remove your shoes. Don't be surprised therefore if you see row upon row of moccasins, wedgies and loafers lining the corridor to these popular rooms.

SUNOMONO: this is the first course of the Sukiyaki dinner. It is a luscious salad consisting of cucumber, turnip and sliced crab meat (it may vary) in a tangy vinegar-like dressing.

TSUKEMONO: here is a palate pleasing morsel! This is Japanese pickle . . . it is much like sliced cabbage in appearance.

SUIMONO: this is the soup course. Clear as consomme with a delicate flavor, the Suimono is enriched with a little square of puffy egg custard. (At this point in the meal you may be searching frantically for a spoon. Don't! One deftly secures soup bowl in hand and sips—a la a handle-less cup.)

TEMPURA: this is fried shrimp (like you've never tasted). It is served with an exotic sauce dip.

SAKE: a hearty drink served warm from a porcelain container and consumed from thimble sized cups (for a very good reason!).

The main course of Sukiyaki is now ready! It has been simmering in a large metal bowl on a stand next to the table. And a delight it was watching it being prepared. The ingredients of beef or chicken neatly sliced, bamboo shoots, mushrooms, green onion, sweet onion, noodle and bean cake were brought into the room on a colorful platter and was prepared by an attractive kimono-clad lass. She serves the meal also. Dessert may be sherbet or an unusual dish of jello (a clear gelatin with tasty morsels of tangerine sections throughout). The complement to the dinner was naturally green tea.

This brief review must prove educational if only it serves to introduce you to Kyoto's, one of the more colorful restaurants in the area!

* * *

Something new has appeared on the Southland scene. As of December 19, the corner of Redondo Beach boulevard and Pacific Coast highway has been graced with an exciting new restaurant called Lococo's. Bound to become one of the most popular dining rooms of the area is Lococo's Fountain Room, which features a ceiling high fountain naturally of changing hues (if you look closely you may even notice the live fish which reside within!).

NAMES IN THE NIGHT—K. Kaye who is "Kapsul Enterprises" and likes the Plush Horse so much; Lee of Hughes Aviation who celebrates her XX birthday this week; Dave Bacal (better known to his admirers as "The Octopus of the Keyboard") who entertains nightly at Lococo's Satellite Bar on a $7000 instrument; "Bub Thomas of the Roaring 20's, who pencils caracatures of patrons on request ("Bub" once did as many as 83 drawings in one night at the Hollywood Canteen during the war); Don Nunez, bartender at the Roaring 20's who doubles as singer with recording quartet called The Four Bits; Pete Reitz, who is responsible for the popular and pleasing Polynesian restaurant (one of the brightest spots on the Pacific Coast highway)!

See you next week with news about Tai Song and other pleasure spots of the area.

EL CAMINO Psychology Instructor George Stanley, right, demonstrates his versatility on a TV program in which he appeared with Del Moore on Moore's late show. Stanley signed a 13-week contract to appear as a commercial announcer on TV shows.

El Camino Instructor Takes to TV Cameras

Classroom to camera will be the regular beat of El Camino College instructor George Stanley for the coming 13 weeks.

Students, accustomed to seeing the versatile young teacher behind lectern or over an examination paper may be startled to see him from the screens of three television channels for the coming 12 weeks.

Stanley, who teaches psychology at El Camino, recently signed a 13 week contract which started Jan. 13. During this period he will be performing in weekly spot commercials on Channels 5, 11, and 13. His appearances will be made primarily on the late shows.

Wednesday and Friday appearances on the Del Moore late show and other late show spots will constitute the major portion of his television work.

Television appearances are not new to Stanley, who has worked for two years with the Inner Sanctum show, a year with the Starlight Theater, and who has made many spot commercials in the area of contact lenses.

In other entertainment media the instructor appeared in a bit part on the "Francis" series in motion pictures. His first appearances were made in the films working as a double in aquacades and other sequences requring the services of a professional athlete in swimming and diving.

Stanley has appeared frequently with the radio personality, Jim Hawthorne on his shows.

Born in Boston, Mass., Stanley enlisted in the army medical department at the age of 17. He was president of his high school graduating class at Roxbury, Mass., where he won all-state honors in swimming, track, and football.

After receiving his bachelor of science degree in the psychology of speech from the University of Southern California, Stanley enrolled for graduate work in speech and psychology at Northwestern University, completing work for his master of arts degree at Los Angeles State College.

The instructor is now in his third year on the El Camino College staff.

Dostoyevsky Classic on TV

CBS Television's "Lamp Unto My Feet" will offer the first television interpretation of Dostoyevsky's classic "The Brothers Karamazov" when it presents "Alyosha and the Agnostic," on Sunday, February 2 at 10 a.m., over the CBS Television Network.

"Alyosha and the Agnostic," adapted from "The Brothers Karamazov" by David Ebin, features James Patterson and Al Morganstern in the two-role dramatization. Both actors are now appearing in legitimate productions in New York—Patterson as "Dimitri" in the production of "The Brothers Karamazov" and Morganstern in the prize-winning Eugene O'Neil play, "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

"Alyosha and the Agnostic" is a revelation of the attitudes of Alyosha, the Karamazov brother training to be a priest, and Ivan the dissipated, wordly older brother. In the "Lamp Unto My Feet" drama the classic Dostoyevsky characters discuss the meaning of religion and the fabric of belief.

"Lamp Unto My Feet's special guest will be Father Dominic Rover of the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, D.C. The moderator is Dr. Lyman Bryson.

Top Newsmen To Discuss Major Issues

NBC News will present "Comment," a weekly program of elaboration on vital current issues, over the NBC-TV network, starting Friday night, January 31.

William R. McAndrew, Director of NBC News, said the show will be televised from approximately 7:45 to 8 p.m., following the professional fight telecasts on NBC-TV each Friday night. Because the conclusion of the fights, will vary, McAndrew said, the exact time for "Comment" will also vary.

NBC News correspondents from around the world and top newspapermen from the nation's leading papers will participate in "Comment." Each panel will consist of three or four mem, bers, changing each week.

Major issues in the news will be topics for "Comment." The newsmen will elucidate the news much as an interpretive columnist does, McAndrew explained. Domestic correspondents will appear live from Washington on "Comment," while NBC News foreign staffers will be seen in filmed reports.

STAR RETURNS

Andy Griffith, who rocketed to fame in "The United States Steel Hour," in the memorable production of "No Time For Sergeants," returns to the series on Wednesday, January 29, to star in "Never Know the End," over CBS Televison.

Jimmy Stewart Kicks Off Boy Scout Drive

Motion picture star James Stewart will be the host on CBS Television's "Let's Take A Trip," Sunday, February 2, when the program originates from the Los Angeles area and helps launch National Boy Scout Week.
