La Golondrina To Be Produced On August First

"La Golondrina" (The Swallow), a new play of the olden, golden days of California by John Steven McGroarty, author of the Mission Play, will be produced for the first time on any stage at San Gabriel on the evening of August 7. It is planned to present this play for one week only this year after which it will be shown seasonally, alternating as a sister play to the Mission Play.

Mr. McGroarty's new California drama is distinctly different from the Mission Play, and, although also founded on history, has in it none of the pastoral. The new play has its action in 1807, with the original scene laid in the Presidio at San Francisco. It is founded on the famous historical romance of Count de Resano, of Russia and Concepcion Arguello, daughter of the Commandante of the Presidio. The tempo of this play is that of an exquisitely sweet love story as suggested by that most haunting of love songs, "La Golondrina," which will be sung in one of the scenes by Spanish troubadours. The laughter and song, the gaiety and happiness of the most romantic period in the history of California history pervades the entire play.

The spectacular feature of "La Golondrina" are the gorgeous Russian and Spanish costumes of the hundred players comprising the cast. Mrs. McGroarty, the gifted wife of the post-playwright, is directing the costuming. Heavy silken shawls, embroidered in dazzling colors, each worth a small fortune, rich velvets and cloths of gold and silver, were selected in the picturesque cities of Old Spain by Mrs. McGroarty last summer, where she visited for several months, carrying in mind the exact color scheme and robe for each particular character in her husband's new play.

The star of the new play is lovely Patia Power, for the past three seasons leading woman of the Mission Play. Petite Spanish Dancers, golden voiced troubadours and other talented singers will form a major part of the big cast of "La Golondrina."

Elaborate scenic sets depicting in faithful detail the fortifications and architecture of early California have been built for the play.

Advance reservations of boxes and loges for the premier performance which are pouring in from every town and hamlet indicate another "first night" out San Gabriel way such as was witnessed April 29, 1912, when the Mission Play made its maiden bow and all the Southland paid tribute to California's post-playwright.

Tea will be poured in the picturesque gardens of the play house and a Spanish orchestra will play soft music in the out-door foyer promising a gala affair where the tinkle of merry feet, the laughter and song of long ago will again be heard.

All roads will lead to San Gabriel on the night of August 7, in the full light of the harvest moon.
