PLENTY OF NAMES

The school census taker stopped at a little hut in the mountains of Kentucky, and addressing the mother of an unusually large flock of children, said:
"Madame, I am taking the school census. How many children have you between the ages of six and—"
"Lemme see," she broke in; there's Katy an' Mary an' Annie an' Lucy an' Carrie an' Rob an' Jake an' Will an' Harry an' Jim an'— She paused for a breath and her caller made haste to say:
"Now, madam, if you could just give me the number—"
"Number?" she snapped; "number? We ain't commenced numberin' yit, thank ye. We ain't run out o' names."
Touched
"Which is the most delicate of the senses?" asked the teacher.
"The touch," said young Jones.
"How's that?" asked the teacher, and young Jones explained: "Well, when you sit on a pin you can't see it, but it's there."

HOME TOWN HELPS

TO STANDARDIZE ROAD SIGNS

Warnings and Directions Are to Be Simplified for the Benefit of British Motorists.

Many motorists in the United States will envy the system of road signs about to be put in effect by the British ministry of transport. Standardization of the signs and their position is the object in view.

Sign Warning British Motorists of Approach to School.

Definite proposals have been laid down in regard to height, color, position of arms, inscriptions, etc., of directing posts, and they are to be applicable throughout England. An example is the red triangle, which is a danger signal. Beneath the triangle is some clear symbol to be used to indicate the particular kind of danger to be guarded against, with lettering beneath the symbol. Thus, a representation of the flaming torch of learning, beneath the red triangle, will warn the motorist of the approach to a school.

Quaint signs now found on English lanes, in spite of the charm they have, according to the plan will have to be sacrificed to the fact that after all a road is a means by which one goes from one place to another, and that any aids to that purpose should be adopted.

GARDEN WORK MEANS HEALTH

Benefits of Cultivation, Even of Small Plot, Have Been Proved to Be Many.

"Community gardens have been encouraged in the city of Philadelphia for the last twenty-three years, primarily as a means of helping people to help themselves.

The same class of work has been carried on in other cities for shorter periods of time, with an equal degree of success and satisfaction, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The original object in every case was to help the people to provide food at home, but incidentally and unexpectedly a number of other benefits which in their way have proved of greater value than the original purpose have developed.

These have to do with the health and pleasure of the families of the gardeners as a result of their outdoor exercise and contact with nature.

A game of golf is all right as a constitutional for those who can afford it. The number, however, who play golf is small as compared with the thousands of those who take their exercise and outdoor life cultivating gardens.

The cultivation of the garden also has the advantage that it adds to the wealth of both the gardener and the nation.

The Small Town.

All America is watching the small town, studying it, interpreting it, seeking through it to discover the depths and intimacies of national life, asserts a high school principal in Virginia. It seems that whereas the small boy still imagines the city as the place containing the "great big things" of the world, yet when he attains intelligent and experienced manhood he continues to return to the village for the "really" big things which denote the nation's true character. Several years ago, says the principal, even New York forgot Broadway to listen to the broken silences of Spoon river, and the dramas and novels engaging the attention of the most serious of the metropolitan critics of today are those dealing with the problems of the Main street village. The country community is no longer obscure.

Proper School Grounds.

When provision has been made for the different playground activities the attention should be turned to the beautifying of the school grounds by means of planting trees and shrubs. This planting should be made for protection, such as a windbreak on the sides from which the prevailing winds blow, and for shade in the early days of summer or fall. It will be necessary to set the trees some distance from the school building, probably 75 or 100 feet distant, in order to give room for the playground apparatus. All planting should be kept close to the boundary lines and the foundation of the building.
