HALF MILLION FEET OF GLASS EACH MONTH

Local Factory Makes Best Grade of Glass In Its History

"The best season we have ever had and the best grade of glass we have ever produced," is the way Superintendent King of the Torrance Window Glass company expresses his satisfaction over the company's production since they opened for the season two months ago.

"We are now producing approximately 3200 boxes of glass each week," said Mr. King. When reduced to figures that a layman could understand this means that each "box" contains fifty square feet, making the production of the plant about 160,000 square feet a week, or more than a half million feet each thirty days.

This glass is being shipped to all parts of the world, and the out-of-the-way places on the globe that are supplied with the Torrance product, would make a story in itself.

The payroll of the concern where more than 200 expert glassblowers and other artisans are employed approximates $50,000 per month, with correspondingly high overhead, one item alone being the gas bill for more than one million feet of glass each day.

Though in some portions of the East machinery has been installed in the making of window glass, this method has not proven entirely satisfactory and glass blowers of the old traditional school are greatly in demand at excellent wages.

The art of glass making is handed down from father to son for generations, and one unconnected either by birth or marriage with a glassblowing family is seldom taken into the union, that is recognized as one of the closest in the world.

After viewing the beautiful, shimmering glass as it reaches the cutters, it is difficult to realize that but a few hours before it was but a heap of sand, mixed in certain proportions with limestone, soda ash, and a sprinkling of soft coal.

This combination is put into a white hot furnace in which the temperature varies between 2700 and 2800 degrees.

It is consumed by the heat like flour poured into a mixing bowl, and becomes a molten mass flowing through the big furnace like a sluggish river.

At the far end scantily clad men, called gatherers, collect the liquid glass on the ends of blowing tubes, which at the proper time are withdrawn from the furnace and placed on rests cooled by running water.

The glass then is about as big as a man's fist and is made into a round ball by skillful turning.

After the ball has become sufficiently cooled the tube is again dipped into the furnace and more of the molten metal collected.

This operation is repeated until the ball gets about the size of a man's head, then it is taken by the blower.

As he forces his breath into the tube the ball elongates, then tapers on the shape of a huge, bowl, hery red at the bottom, but clear as crystal on the sides.

It is then carried to a blast furnace and while the blower manipulates his tube on a swinging door the bowl of glass is reheated.

It is then in the critical stage. At the proper instant the blower again begins to force his breath into the tube and the big glass bowl starts to elongate like an oblong rubber balloon. Under constant reheating and blowing it takes on a cylindrical form and when properly cooled is placed on a rack and split lengthwise by a red hot iron.

The glass then is in its most perfect stage and carries a high gloss which is partly lost when the cylinder is reheated to be flattened out. The cylinder to be flattened is placed in a red hot brick oven and ironed out.

When it reaches the sheet stage it is carried off by rollers through cooling ovens, and when it makes its appearance again it is ready for the cutter.

A blower turns out about nine cylinders an hour, and because of the arduous character of his work and the intense heat he is subjected to, his hours of employment are limited to seven, instead of the usual eight to ten, as in other trades.

Judge J. L. King Given Surprise

Sunday last was "forget-me-not" day for a score or more of friends of Judge J. L. King, who remembered the latter's birthday by giving the popular young attorney a surprise dinner at his home on Andree street.

Purposely called away from home Sunday evening, he was completely taken by surprise on his return an hour later to find his home filled with friends and a dining table loaded with good things to eat.

Those enjoying the dinner and the social evening that followed, included Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McElwain, all of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. King, Mrs. Martha Woods, Mrs. J. L. King, and Harold King.

Expert Welder to Live in Torrance

Returning to Torrance after an absence of more than six years, George F. Kirchner, who for five years occupied a responsible position with one of the leading industries here, has returned to open, with Jack Hyde, a welding shop.

During his absence from Torrance Mr. Kirchner has been in the employ of shipbuilding concerns on Puget Sound, the Southwestern Shipbuilding company in Long Beach, and proprietor of the Oxnard Welding company of Oxnard, Calif. In the latter enterprise he was associated with the Hyde brothers, to one of whom he sold his interest. The other brother accompanied him to Torrance, where they expect to make their home.

Having specialized in welding of all kinds for many years, and being the originator of the "barrel" welding at the Union Tool company's plant, Mr. Kirchner is equipped to do expert welding in all its varied branches.

The new firm is known as Kirchner & Hyde, and have leased the rear end of the building at the corner of Border avenue and 2134th street, opposite the Pacific Electric depot, and now jointly occupied with the Torrance Transfer company.

SPLENDID TYPE OF COMEDY

From all advance reports Charles Ray made a happy choice in selecting "A Tailor Made Man" for his initial United Artists production. Heralded as setting a new and higher standard of screen comedy drama, it comes to the Torrance theatre next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 23, 24 and 25.

"A Tailor Made Man" is a significant production in more ways than one. Not only is it the costliest photoplay ever produced by Charles Ray, but it presents him in a new character, a novel environment, and astounding situations. He is said to have made the role of John Paul Bart one of the most colorful and picturesque in the annals of screen drama, and to have outdone himself in point of humor, charm, and tenderness.

Supporting Ray in this production are many stars of the screen who have made individual reputations in various interpretations of the drama.

THE PUBLISHER'S RESPONSIBILITY

More and more difficult every day is the choice of good reading—the kind that nourishes the young and refreshes the old. One way to avoid mistakes is to choose the book or periodical that stands for something—that is not everlastingly supplying the sensational and silly.

The Youth's Companion has always been published by men who felt a keep responsibility to their readers, and they have held steadfast to one purpose: to familiarize Companion readers with the best things in the world, and by means of original articles and stories to illustrate the truth that the practice of the old, homely virtues brings the greatest satisfactions in life.

Try it for a year and see.

Torrance Laundry Buys Machinery

Under the able management of Superintendent Wm. H. Rojo, the Torrance Laundry is being developed into a truly metropolitan establishment, and is now turning out work that would be a credit to any similar laundry in Los Angeles, or other large city.

Recently Mr. Rojo and his partners in the venture, G. A. Barlow and John Blumenberg, installed several thousands of dollars' worth of the most up-to-date laundry machinery, including two Universal pressers, whose work in smoothing the wrinkles in heavy goods is marvelous; a Nelson & Kruder steam-heated ironer, that insures real domestic work with collars and shirts, and a complicated and almost human Rapid Washer for quick work.

In addition to the above the firm has erected a heavy galvanized iron building in the rear of the laundry to accommodate their new large horse-power boiler.

With all this new equipment and the force of experienced workers that has been increased 100 per cent since the change in ownership, there is simply no need of residents of Torrance sending their work out of town. Indeed, a large portion of the Torrance laundry patronage is from San Pedro and Long Beach, and other near-by towns, showing that the residents of those cities know good work when they see it, and are profiting thereby.

M. E. AID BAZAAR

The annual Christmas Bazaar of the M. E. Ladies Aid Society will be held Saturday November 18 in the Lobby of the El Prado Apts at 1:00 o'clock. The food sale will be at the Rock Bottom Store beginning at 12:00 o'clock. All money derived from this sale goes for the church building. There will be many beautiful as well as useful articles for Christmas presents including hand embroidered towels, aprons, buffet sets, dresser scarfs and other kinds of fancy work. In the plant booth will be well rooted rose bushes, begonias, ferns, poinsettias and other plants as well as bulbs. A crimson rambler rose bush will be given away with every purchase of $1.00 of plants. Packages are arriving daily for the parcel post booth. These packages are to be sold for 10 cents each just as they come without being unwrapped. Home-made candy will be for sale.

M. W. A. NOTES

Last Wednesday evening the Modern Woodmen took in a class of six candidates. Ocean Park drill team came over to put on the work and did a real ob of it. A good crowd was out despite the rain that was threatening all day and evening. Don't forget to go to Long Beach next Friday evening to the Zone Adoption. A big class is to be adopted and you know what that means at Long Beach. Do not let up on the ticket sales as the drawing is getting close and not many days left to dispose of all unsold tickets.
