TOWNE TALK

"Just for Fun"

By RAS BERRY

H. A. Treadwell takes Lawrence, his four-year-old son, in to the Torrance Pharmacy to get a lollipop and Lawrence gives the store the once over and says this ain't the sucker store and Dick Malone says you said it my lad and Tread says Well I don't know.

Tread is full of stories this wk. He sees a coaster and a sled out in front of Hurum Reeve's store and wants a committee to haul Hurum out for advertising that there is going to be snow in Torrance. Well, even if there ain't no snow, there is can't be any tougher sledging than it has been the last few months, says Tread.

Harvel Guttenfelder comes home the other day and telephones the police that somebody has been in the house while he and Mrs. G. was away. The police arrive and after investigation find a neighbor went into Harvel's house and shut the windows because the wind was blowing plenty of sand into the house. All these here burglars has got lots of sand says Chief Patterson.

There should ought to be a law which says that when a guy has got a little jack saved up to buy Christmas presents with, why the tax collector can't come along on Dec. 1 and snatch it all away from him.

They arrested Santa Claus in L. A. the other day and let the tax assessor run at large. Sa funny would.

The laurel wreaths that go to them Who are the champion guessers, Should go in L. A. county to Them durned old tax assessors.

Oh, It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo', No Mo', etc.

Geo. Neill keeps track of things. He was down to the Lora J. the other morning early getting the low down on the deep sand.

DEAR RAS BERRY: When you hear the steamboat whistle, Your paper's at the door. You've surely learned that lesson If you never knew before.

For, throughout The Torrance Herald, No matter where you look, You'll find that cute news item In corner and in nook.

But the queerest thing about it— Now whaddya think that?— Is, we've never heard the whistle. Signed, DOLL HAR and THE BAT.
