Syncoptors Offer Prize for Name of Torrance Orchestra

The Torrance Syncoptors have decided to change their name. For those not familiar with the organization, it is composed of six local musicians who furnish music for dances and other occasions.

Everyone in Torrance is invited to suggest a name. The one chosen by the members as being the best will be used, and the one sending it will be awarded a five-dollar gold piece. The contest will close Jan. 23, and the prize will be awarded on the evening of Jan. 24.

Names should be sent by mail to R. G. Tomkins, in care of Renn and Tomkins, Carson street, Torrance.

Mr. Tomkins is manager of the orchestra and plays the drums and tuba, Austin Clark plays the violin, Floyd Parker the piano, C. E. Bond the banjo, Harry Bradhurst the trumpet, and O. W. Hudson the trombone and saxophone.

Nose Dives In Plane Restore Girl's Speech and Hearing

Miss Gwendolyn Caswell, 14, pilot Burley after their 1500-foot flight.

CHICAGO—Gwendolyn Caswell, 14 years old, deaf and dumb since the age of 3, has spoken and heard. Perhaps she will have lost the gift by the time this story is printed, but local officers of the reserve corps believe it may be restored permanently.

For it was in an airplane that she recovered the use of her tongue and ears.

Miss Caswell is a close friend of Walter Kaufman, "they met in the Pas-a-Pas Society, an organization of the deaf and dumb, of which Miss Caswell is a member and in which Kaufman is interested.

Art Exhibit Will Be Feature at Meeting of Club

Mrs. Willis M. Brooks, art chairman of the Women's Club, announces that at the meeting to be held at the Evangelical Guild hall Jan. 24 the painting of which the club is part owner will be on view, together with other paintings and attractive prints.

This painting, chosen from a number on exhibition in Los Angeles last summer, was purchased for $1000 by 100 clubs in the Los Angeles federation.

One-cent Matinee Makes Great Hit

One-cent matinee proved popular with the kiddies Saturday afternoon at Torrance theatre.

Each child who attended was given a ticket for next Saturday for one cent.

This was in celebration of the showing of the first episode of a 15-chapter story, to be shown on Saturdays. "The Riddle Rider" promises all the thrills and surprises that are usual in such a story of the great west.

AT MRS. STOCK'S

Several members of the Torrance I. T. A. and Women's Club gathered at Central church Friday afternoon and drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stock, Avenue C, Clifton, surprising Mrs. Stock with a shower of beautiful and useful gifts.

Mrs. Roy Colburn of Gardena and Mrs. Stock's sister, Mrs. Springer, of C.-C. M. O. camp, prepared and served refreshments, and the afternoon was greatly enjoyed by the following: Mrs. L. W. Barnett and Mrs. Roy Colburn, of Gardena; Mrs. Fred Stock, of Lomita; Mrs. Joe Stone, of Athens, and Mesdames C. L. Hyde, L. A. Hyde, F. W. Crossland, H. F. Beckwith, J. A. Davidson, J. A. Young, F. J. Young and J. T. Wise, of Torrance.

When they landed Miss Caswell spoke a few words. They were the first she had pronounced, she said, for nineteen years.

Afterward everyone went into a hangar where there was a small phonograph. She could hear the music as far as twelve feet away and danced to it. And, slowly and painfully, she talked to her friends.
