TOWNE ALKE

"Just for Fun"

By RAS BERRY

Well Verne Babcock and Bob Deiningner and Sam Levy and me went up into the Palos Verdes hills Sunday a.m. to the riding academy and took a ride. And Sam and me played some polo and once Sam he made a swipe at this horse polo ball and missed it and the mallet swung up and smacked that white horse of his'n in the snout. And the horse he reared up and Sam yelled whoa so loud that every nag on the field stopped dead in his tracks.

And once when I wasn't paying no attention why this steed that I was alleged to be riding he stopped quick without no warning and I turned a complete flip flop and lit on the place made to sit down on. And you should ought to of heard Verne and Bob laff. I guess they was afraid to play polo.

Freddie Palmer he hears about our riding up there and he says well I always said that bankers and editors and store operators only needed a horse to be real Jesse Jameses.

We was all pretty lame and sore Monday but that was a good thing because I felt like being on my feet a lot Monday and they was collecting bills to be done and I was glad to do it rather than set down in a chair.

And when I goes to Freddie Palmer to collect a bill why he shows me where this here bill has been paid already and then he looks at me and says Where's your hoss?

Sam Rappaport and Mrs. R. is back from their trip all over the country. They run into a storm on the Atlantic on the boat from New Orleans to New York and they was all expecting Sam to get sick, but even Mrs. R. says Sam stayed on his feet all the time, but she—well she was kind-hearted and felt sorry for the poor hungry fishes in the sea.

Sam he asked me to put that in the paper. Mrs. R. she says don't put that in the paper. She is boss of the family I guess, but Sam he signs the checks for the adv. bills.

We was laffing at W. Post the other day because his dawg got frisky in their back yard and reached up on the clothes line one Monday a.m. and tore down a lot of clothes and linen and tore them all to pieces but now we know that he who laffs last is tickled to death because this Monday a.m. why our dawg tore down our best tablecloth off the line and made lace out of it and chewed up Little Ras's Sunday britches.

Bill Teal he says them dawgs that W. Post and us has got ain't Gt. Danes, they is Irish Tear-ers.

Well, after riding that hoss I guess I been setting down long enough and so will stop today and go out and collect (?) some more cash. I'll write some more tomorrow. That'll be easy because I hear lots of funny jokes while I am collecting (?) bills.

Ed Huddleston finally went on that vacation alone and he is back from Big Bear only he ain't in such good shape because he has got a wrist that is burned bad. The water in Ed's car's radiator was boiling and he took off the top and the water spouted up like a geyser and burned his wrist. Kitty, who is Ed's boss, she says, at the furniture store, she says to Hudd, You never was any good around a tea-kettle.

Doll Har sends in a label advertising target brand whole spices and mustard seed by Smart and Pinal and Doll Har says when a company like that sells pepper and mustard seed, etc, you can't hope to have the last word with 'em, can you?

No, Doll Har, you can't, unless you're plastered.

The Legion boys was trying to get somebody to take down the hanging ring on the Fiesta grounds and take it back and the bus mgr. who is a bachelor says he should ought to do it because he is used to taking rings back.

CHAPTER TWO

Last wk. we forgot to say that after Mrs. Reeve got them stairs washed she had to send down to the store to get a ladder to get upstairs to get her own clothes and some of our subscribers is sore because we ended the story last wk. and left Mrs. Reeve in her old clothes for a whole wk.

Contractor Darling he has the nerve to say to Mrs. Reeve, when I see by the paper that you'd be a good one to saw limbs off of a tree.

On acct. of riding them horses in the bright sun with his sleeves rolled up why Sam Levy got his arms all sunburned and the next day they was awful red and Sam he says it's horse reddish.

The boys is trying to get W. Post up there to ride a horse and Fred Patton he makes a wise crack like this: When the horses start in to trot will Wallace Post.

While the boys was playing beach football on the Balboa Beach at the Rotary picnic Wednesday why W. Post he run with the ball and Bob Hoag tackled him and Bob says that's the first time he ever throwed a banker for a loss.

Mac Mackenzie was umpire and he said he was going to stop the game when the score was 5 and 10. Some bozos never can forget their business.

A guy setting on the front porch of his cottage yells out is this a Christian Endeavor picnic and then he sees Sam Levy and he says I beg your pardon.

Freddie Palmer parks his car in front of a old shed while he goes in to trip the light fantastic and when he come out they was a valentine pinned out the car and it told Freddie to come down to Court on Aug. 3 to tell the judge why he parked the car in front of the fire station and Fred says if that there shed is the fire station I don't see why Rufus Page wastes his time selling fire insurance in Torrance.

I says to Hudd

You know the story about Paul Bunyan's wife and the calf. Mrs. Paul she had to lift the calf over the fence every day while she milked the cow.

And the calf kept growing and finally she was lifting a fourteen hundred pound animal, but the growth had been so gradual she had not noticed it.

Well there are some people like that. They will buy an ordinary spring and mattress and for a while it's just fine.

But gradually it gets lumpy and uncomfortable and they as gradually get used to it and the first thing they know they are sleeping on a bed they wouldn't have thought of trying to sleep on in the first place.

And Hudd says you said it.

Kitty
