Why Do People Save?

After twelve years of banking experience we think we know. It's not so much for comfort in old age—nobody who has any ambition will believe he'll be poor at seventy.

It's not so much to pay the doctor bill that may come—most of us are too optimistic to anticipate doctor bills. It's not so much to pay the doctor bill that may come—KNOWING that you are accumulating something. Isn't it?
