TOWNE TALK

"Just for Fun" By RAS BERRY

The two prides of Post ave. in W. Post's big Dane dawg and Jawn McMillan's hens and roosters and the other day the Post dawg transferred her attention from tearing the washing down off of the line and digging big holes in the back yard and she leaped over the fence and grabbed one of them chickens of Jawn's in her voracious mouth and if it had not been for Warren McMillan she would have ate up that there baby pullet. After the brave rescue why Wallace and Jawn got together and placed a value of $1 on every chick the dawg should happen to kill and now Wallace has to watch Jawn's coop to see that he don't leave the door open to let the dawg in.

There is quite a demand for the kittens out pretty soon, six people have put in bids for the little felines but from the way things look at this writing they are liable to be a baker's dozen so all applications is still welcome. Form the line on the left.

Spud Murphy has changed his tactics and has decided to follow yrs. truly in picking football winners. He hears that I has picked the Chicago Bears to beat the L. A. Tigers and he succeeds in announcing enough bets that way to pay his January laundry bill. Ben Rappaport was my huckleberry.

While I was out putting the finishing touches on the dawg-house Sunday Geo. Myrick and Carl Burmaster is pitching horse-shoes and all I hear is alibis, so when Carl says he has got to go in and study his lessons, why I go over and take Geo. on for a few games and Geo. he beats me three times in a row and he says you ain't no better horseshoe pitcher than you is a dawg-house builder and I says I guess that's so, but we can't all come from lowly.

Rufus Page gets up the other night at the Harbor District meeting when they is calling the roll of the newspaper men present and says he is Rufus Page, editor of the Torrance Herald. Rufus is a realTOR and not a EDITOR, the difference being that though both ends in the Spanish for bull the realtor speaks his.

They was a young boy late for Sunday School Sunday and Ben Lingenfelter asks him why he was late and he says well I was going fishing but Paw stopped me and said I had to go to Sunday School and Ben says that was right of your father and did he explain why you should attend Sunday School and the boy says yes he said they was only one fish-pole.

My paw is here from Michigan and when he left there it was 12 below zero and the other day he picks up the L. A. Times and he reads about the blizzard that is sweeping the east, middle west and south and after he gets through he says well they is a blizzard in every state in the union except California and Michigan. They didn't mention Michigan, but I guess it must of been a oversight. They better print a storm in Michigan tomorrow or these Wolverine tourists is liable to go back home.

EL TORO THEATRE Ananias LeBeauf, Manager. Our Motto-Bully for You. Coming Attractions: FRED PALMER In "The Spiritual Adviser" By Post Chaplin. CAL ALVERSON In "A Perfect Score" by Oldie Wood. GEORGE NEILL In "Go West" By Lefty York. (York Teller, please copy.)

DEAR RAS: I was talkin' to your son Bill the other day and we got to talkin' about that new dog house that you built for your houn' and young Ras he said that his "Daddy and Con Cave built it out of their heads and they had enough left to build another one." How 'bout it? RUSTY SAW.

Lissen here, Rusty, that there dog-house was made by piece out of wood and not carved whole out of bone. So you needn't get so smart.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Pearson of Western avenue were dinner guests Friday of Mrs. A. L. Geery of Redondo Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gerwit of South Bend, Wash., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bale of Carson street.

A "chicken Spanish" dinner was enjoyed recently at the S. F. Webb home by Mr. and Mrs. James Blakesly of Long Beach and Edward Friel of Los Angeles.

William F. Barnes of Keyatone, who has been suffering from pneumonia, has had a relapse and is said to be in a critical condition.
