1600 To Attend
Oil Co. Picnic
Here Saturday

C.-C. M. O. Employees From Distant Points To Convene in Torrance

With everything "from soup to nuts" paid for by the company, 1600 Southern California employees of the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company will convene in Torrance on Saturday, July 3, for the second annual picnic of the company.

The big picnic will be held at the C.-C. M. O. ball grounds, where E. O. Faulkner will open the festivities with a short address of welcome.

Then there will be a ball game between teams from the Midway and the Oilfield districts.

At noon a barbecue dinner will be served. Joe Romero, famous barbecue chef, will prepare the viands.

In the afternoon there will be contests and games, to be followed at night with a dance on the company's new tennis courts. Flood lights of many colors will play on the dancers.

Many of the employees coming to the picnic from distant points will spend three days in Torrance. Employees will be present from Bakersfield, Taft, Ventura, Placentia, Los Angeles, and other districts where the C.-C. M. O. has leases or offices.

Business Houses To Close Monday

Business houses here will be closed Monday in celebration of Independence Day, which falls on Sunday.

Wins Cake on Own Merits

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY years ago a lusty infant was christened by a few brave gentlemen of the American colonies in Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The infant thrived on wars. In the very tenderest years of his youth he flung defiance at his father Empire and launched out for himself, the United States of America. He had hardly settled into peaceful pursuits when 1812 came and he had to take to the seas to defend his liberties.

Fifty years more and he was at war again, but this time it was a war with himself. He fought an inner battle with a rebellious spirit, and aided by staunch friends like Abraham Lincoln and U. S. Grant, conquered his own restless spirit.

Peace then for several years, during which he waxed fat in worldly goods and worldly knowledge. Then he found himself forced to take up the cudgel again, in 1917, helping his old father Empire and a few of his allies to put down a neighbor whose overweening ambition led to his own ruin.

Now he is able to sit down and enjoy a birthday cake in peace, that he has earned well. He is 150 years old, but feels as fit as a fiddle, and doesn't show his age at all.

OBSERVATIONS

THE McPherson case illustrates this point nicely. Twenty years ago I believe men never would have said out loud the things one now hears every day about this evangelist. In those days men regarded it as their moral duty to protect women, physically and against slander.

Has this fine spirit departed? The McPherson case seems so to indicate.

ABOUT Mrs. McPherson's disappearance we have no theory to offer. She says she was kidnaped. Naturally enough and as would be expected some circumstantial evidence is at hand to refute such a statement. But it is flimsy evidence at best. On what sound basis of logic has any the right to dispute the story? It is possible that if the kidnaping statement were a hoax, none of this evidence would be available.

As a woman before the Court of Public Opinion Mrs. McPherson should obtain the same justice as would be accorded her in a Court of Law.

IF Mrs. McPherson was not kidnaped, but disappeared for private reasons, that is the affair of none but herself, her family, and the people who have believed in her sincerity and supported her religious work.

It is none of the business of the rest of the world.

PERHAPS this interesting woman's greatest crime is that she has made herself prominent.

He who builds a great castle must protect it. The larger the castle the more powerful and well organized the designs against it.

He or she who stands in the white gleam of high places has no private affairs. When one gives himself or herself to the public, he or she belongs to the public and all his or her acts, beliefs, character assets and human frailties are seized upon and magnified by a world of mortals who are guided almost entirely by prejudice or emotion and very little by reason and logic.

O. E. S. Initiates
Two Candidates

The meeting of Torrance Chapter, O. E. S., held last Thursday evening was a decidedly interesting one. The initiatory degree was conferred on two candidates.

Visitors present included Worthy Matron Ada Fohl, Worthy Patron Lemke and the officers and other members, 26 in all, of the new baby chapter at Wilmington; Past Grand Patron Gorham, of Texas; Brother Martin, of Inglewood; members from lodges at Denver, Colo., Salt Lake City, Hollywood, and South Pasadena.

The banquet which followed was served at beautifully adorned tables, set to form the letter H, for Harmony. Short speeches made by the visitors were enjoyed.

The refreshments were prepared and served under the direction of Sisters Middleton, Post, Paour, Parks, Peckham, Peightal, Plumb, and Paxman.

ATTEND OPERA

Mrs. J. S. Lancaster, newly elected president of the Women's Club; Mrs. Frank Miller, third vice-president; Miss Rose Rothleder, music chairman; Mrs. Willis Brooks, federation secretary, and Mrs. Shidder attended the opening performance of "Shawnee" at Hollywood Bowl. The Torrance club women joined the Glendale Women's Club, who reserved a section of seats for their members and friends. The opera was greatly enjoyed, and all were loud in their praise for the beauty of Hollywood Bowl.

LAZY DAISY CLUB

The last card party of the season for the Lazy Daisy Club, held Monday evening, proved a delightful affair. The hostess was Mrs. Charles Buzzini of San Pedro. Members present, with their husbands, included Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Wheaton, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. West, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Coryell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Curry, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Neutebaum; Mrs. James Peel and Miss Viola Wheaton.
