Mrs. Hanna Pearson Dies at Son's Home

Mrs. Hanna Pearson, 82, passed away Monday at the home of her son, Daniel Pearson, of Keystone. Born and married in Sweden. Mrs. Pearson came to the United States and settled in Iowa in 1871, and for six years had resided in Keystone. Her husband, Oloaf Pearson, died in 1898.

Mrs. Pearson (nee Nelson) became a Christian when a young girl, and was so persecuted by her stepmother because of her conversion that she was obliged to leave her home. She was baptized and joined the Baptist Church in 1857. A consistent Christian, Mrs. Pearson was one of the pioneer Baptists of Iowa, and at the time of her death was a member of the Torrance Baptist Church. Her children were all dedicated to the church at an early age.

Surviving Mrs. Pearson are one daughter, Mrs. Edith Hudson, of Los Angeles; and five sons—Joseph, Kelly and Pat, of South Bend, Wash.; Eli, of Los Angeles; and Daniel, of Keystone; and 20 grandchildren.

Pastor H. B. Tranchesi of the Keystone Baptist Church conducted services today at Brown's parlors at 1815 South Flower street. Interment was made in Roosevelt Memorial Park.

SCHOOL NEWS

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

There will be several changes in faculty for the fall term. Anna S. Klemm has resigned, announcing her engagement to be married in October to a prominent business man living near Portland. Florence Felton has been transferred to Vernon Avenue School, Los Angeles.

Mabel-Ella Brown has given up work as a home teacher among the foreign families and will be assigned as full-time classroom teacher again.

Mrs. Alice K. Blackstad has resigned. Miss Helen K. Williams of the kindergarten staff has been forced to resign because of ill-health.

Miss Gladys Walling, kindergarten director, will return to her position here, but with a different name. She will be married during the last week of August to Mr. Edward Baker.

Later announcement will be made of new teachers assigned to fill the vacancies. With these exceptions the teachers of last year will return for the new school year.

Departmental plan of study will be instituted again in the upper grades so as to give teachers a chance for specialization and also to afford the pupils better instruction and preparation for junior high school.

The school bus will start operation immediately upon the opening of school on September 7. There may be some addition to the route used last year because of the annexation of territory west of Torrance.

THE SANTA FE AND TORRANCE TOMORROW

THE remarks of E. O. Faulkner of the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company, Santa Fe subsidiary, at the Rotary Club luncheon last Thursday, were pregnant with significance to Torrance.

Mr. Faulkner struck the keynote of all community progress when he said that the advancement of a city is linked securely with the progress of every institution in that city. As the individual organizations prosper so prospers every person in a community.

Here is a thought that each of us should carry paraten in his mind at all times when city affairs are under consideration.

The progress and prosperity of Torrance is dependent in every analysis on the progress and prosperity of the institutions which constitute the economic foundation of Torrance.

And added to the institutions which have been this city's foundation we now have the Santa Fe Railroad Company, owning 800 acres of land inside the city limits and proposing with all speed possible to develop this acreage industrially.

Every person in Torrance who has the interests of his city at heart and every person who takes his own economic position seriously—and who does not?—should congratulate his city and himself for the possession of this company as an ally in every Torrance forward movement.

By assisting the Santa Fe in its development the citizens of Torrance speed the proposed Santa Fe development and in so doing hurry the growth of Torrance and the betterment of the economic condition of every person here resident.

It seems almost unnecessary to stress this fact, its truth is so evident.

Few cities in Southern California own a future that is so brilliant with promise. To have induced the Santa Fe to center its Southern California industrial activities most cities would have expended a fortune and the investment would have been sound.

Torrance has received the benefit of this Santa Fe industrial activity without so much as asking for it. It was thrown in our laps because after careful study the Santa Fe concluded that Torrance is the logical industrial center in the harbor district and the harbor district is the logical industrial center of Southern California. That the Chamber of Commerce industrial survey did much to convince the Santa Fe of the industrial advantages of Torrance is the statement by Santa Fe officials, but the decision of the company to buy 800 acres here and concentrate the activities of its industrial department on this tract's development was made without organized community inducement.

Now comes Mr. Faulkner, a man whose conservatism of statement is the result of half a century of railroad experience, and tells Torrance men that the Santa Fe expects big things in Torrance—big things for the Santa Fe and big things for Torrance.

Fortunately Torrance is made up of citizens of high intelligence and is represented by a Board of Trustees that appreciates the value to Torrance of the Santa Fe development. The board is speeding proceedings for the street vacations which are necessary before plans for the industrial subdivision of the Santa Fe can be carried out. And the citizens of Torrance are almost unanimous in their support of the trustees in this action.

None of us should expect development in the Santa Fe tract to take place overnight. The company is prepared at once to make ready the subdivision for industries. But its development by factories will be gradual, rather than rushing. And after all, steady constant growth is better than a mushroom boom.

Let us all remember these few things: That the Santa Fe decision to locate here was affected greatly by the fact that Torrance had at hand an industrial survey that scientifically set forth Torrance advantages and that the cost of this survey—$4000—more than came back with the Santa Fe decision; that only through co-operation between the citizenry, the Board of Trustees and the Santa Fe can the development be secured and speeded; that in this case as in all others community co-operation gets results and community scraps get just nothing at all.

WHO WOULD LIVE IN A DARK HOUSE?

SAID a visitor: "Southern California is beautiful at night. Its cities are so well lighted."

The visitor naturally reserved remarks about Torrance in this connection. Torrance is a lack-lustre in the nocturnal diadem of the Los Angeles basin.

We do not want lights solely for the purpose of tickling our municipal vanity, although self-satisfaction in a community is as important to a community as the salesman's knowledge when he steps in on a customer that he makes a presentable appearance.

More important still is the fact that lights are as essential to a modern community as pavements. They provide protection, actually. They lend a feeling of security. They are beautiful as well as utilitarian. A city without lights is like a home without illumination. Who would live in a dark house?
