Footnote.—This is a funny column.

W. Post he was elected president of the Rotary Club and he was so proud that he took the club's swell silver-handled gavel home to show to the children and the children they liked it pretty well and Sonny Post he played with it quite a lot and whacked his sister with it and broke the handle right off. Sonny he wields a wicked gavel.

When bushes don't grow the experts say you should ought to cut them back and I guess Harvel Guttenfelder has been going to horticulture school because he has completely eliminated his so-called mustache.

Which is o.k. because if he had let it go to seed the town would have been full of runt shrubs.

Doc Ingold tried to hire Harvel before the hairs was cut off. Doc is a optometrist and he wanted Harvel to stand up against the wall in place of Doc's letter chart and if patients could see the hairs at 15 paces they didn't need glasses. If they could count the hairs at that distance they would go down on the records as sharpshooters.

Doc one time used a dime for patients to look at and if they could see it they didn't need no specs. But Doc had so many Scotch patients that the practice didn't pay.

Don Baxter fixes tires, goes fishing, joins the bars.

To hear the fishing yarns of Dewey Fix, you'd think he thought that all of us were hicks.

Mose Tolson has got a new Red Flying Cloud. Mose does the flying and leaves a cloud behind him.

Ovaltine

A new food-drink that picks you up quickly—Builds Body, Brain

"Ovaltine" is a Swiss discovery. As far as we know there is no other food drink like it. It is more than food—a food that will nourish when other foods fail. Run down conditions—"log" feeling in the morning—lack of energy and endurance, are often traceable to some form of faulty nutrition—to a lowered capacity of the body to absorb and properly utilize the nourishment supplied to it.

It's not what you eat but what you digest that counts. Seventy per cent of your food is starchy. And "Ovaltine" has the power actually to digest from four to five times its own weight of starch.

Not only does "Ovaltine" help digest starchy foods, but it is, itself, rapidly digested and assimilated by the system. It digests twice as quickly as milk. And it is rich in every known energizing and body building constituent. It produces two to five times more energy than eggs milk or beef; gives four times (average) more natural organic phosphorus—for brain and nerves; than the same foods; and in like proportion more of the nutriment that builds muscle, bone—and makes rich red blood.
