"The Red Kimono" on Screen
Thursday and Friday,
Sept. 15-16

"The Red Kimono," which will be screened at the Torrance theatre Sept. 15 and 16, is a picture that should have a powerful appeal to all parents, because it deals with a subject close to their hearts—the welfare of their children especially their daughters.

Many people close their eyes to the truth and think that conditions such as are exposed in the "Red Kimono" cannot exist and every parent blindly hopes that nothing like the tragic experiences of Gabrielle Darley can possibly happen to one of his children. To all such Mrs. Wallace Reid, who made the picture, replies that this drama is taken from an actual case on record in the courts of California, and that every year thousands of innocent trusting girls disappear, submerged in the sordid life of the sisterhood of sorrow. The heartlessness of the white slavers who betray and exploit them and the hopelessness of the struggle to escape make "The Red Kimono" the most startling cross section of life ever shown on the screen.

Seventh Heaven
Shown on "Legit"
at the Morosco

The stage version of "Seventh Heaven," which was the original form of the great love drama, is attracting the attention of theatre-goers throughout Southern California, according to numerous reports. The sensational plot with its setting in the streets of Paris and later on the seventh floor garret of a Parisian tenement house is alone enough to arouse public interest, it is said.

With the dramatic lines and tense emotional moments that the footlit version is able to bring to an audience, the play is felt to be one of the finest dramas shown in Los Angeles this season.

Kay Hammond, the Morosco feminine star, is said by critics to be equalling Helen Menken in her famous depiction of the role of Diane, John Littel is also making a decided hit as Chico, Mitchell Harris as Brissac, V. Talbot Henderson as Boul, Harry Garrity as the Priest and William Franklyn as The Rat are part of the great cast which director James Durkin has assembled for the Austin Strong drama.

Beatrice Lillie Orpheum Feature

The week starting with the Sunday matinee, Sept. 18, is scheduled to be a most unusual affair at the Orpheum Theatre, Los Angeles, for it not only has Beatrice Lillie, the noted international star, as a headliner for the second week, but it brings the lavish production of Ned Wayburn's "Hubs of 1927."

This season is the first time the famous producer of Ziegfeld Follies and other big New York revues has produced an offering for vaudeville and it is said "The Hubs of 1927" is an outstanding example of his artistry and ability. Not only does it have special settings and music, but it brings an array of youthful talent which Mr. Wayburn has gathered from all over the country. Young comedians, pretty dancers and singers and many other artists are included in the cast.

Two other outstanding offerings on the new bill will include Deiro, the noted piano accordionist, and "The Monologist," a mystery offering from the pen of Edwin Burke, O'Neill and Vermont, Luster Brothers, and two other Orpheum Circuit feature attractions will complete the new bill.

"Finger Prints," a mystery yarn starring Louise Fazenda and John T. Murray, and "Riding Romance," a Western feature with all the thrills that the name implies.

Ranger, one of the screen's most famous and best loved canine stars, takes the leading role Saturday night in "When a Dog Loves," a gripping story of a dog's devotion, of his triumph over environment, and of the dealing of swift and inexorable justice in the dark hours of the night.

Alec B. Francis, in "The Music Master" and "The Return of Peter Grimm" is a lovable character whom film enthusiasts do not soon forget. The management of the Lomita Theatre has been fortunate in obtaining both of his famous pictures during the same week. Admirers of the whimsical, boyish old "Peter Grimm," the Holland grower of bulbs and flowers, who, after he crossed the great divide, realized mortal mistakes of judgment and returned to rectify them; and of Anton von Barwig, the old "Music Master," whose love is a thing of slipping beauty, have indeed a treat in store. Louis Moran plays the lead role opposite Francis in "The Music Master" and Janet Gaynor is the feminine star in "The Return of Peter Grimm."
