THE FOREST AND OUR WATER SUPPLY

That the forest plays an important part in the regulation of streamflow has been brought out by scientific investigation over a great many years and in many parts of the world.

The forests are not only an important factor in regulating streamflow, but also aid in modifying climate and the character of the soil, tending toward the improvement of the water storage capacity of any watershed.

The tendency of the forest is to equalize the flow throughout the year of all streams having their origin in tree-covered mountain regions.

The booklet shows the effect of forest cover to be most beneficial on steep slopes, at the higher elevations and on nonporous soils.

A limited number of free copies of "Forests and Water" are available upon application to the office of Information, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Venus Cheated; Columbia Steel Bard Pens Poem

Projected Wedding That Didn't Materialize Moves Poet to Song

They all have pretty bass down at the Columbia Steel plant and mine, but they have time nevertheless to be interested in projected events like weddings, honeymoons, tips of tails.

So they were all interested recently in a love match and a planned wedding and when it didn't come off as planned, the interest grew even more intense.

COLUMBIA GIRLS

Columbia Steel was about to lose Harry

Who decided to go to Yuma to marry

And invited Jeff to go along

In case he needed something strong

When Papa said, "Yes"

Mamma said, "No!"

So then to Yuma they did not go

Yuma's the place where they do it right

Where they make the knot and tie it tight

To those who there have made a mistake

A trip to Reno some will make

However, when Mamma says, "Yes"

And Papa says, "No"

You can bet, to Yuma they will go

Now Jeff was full of that Cave Man Stuff

And on many a June he had pulled his shirt

But alas and alack, he met his fate

In a sweet little dame who proved his mate

So when Papa said, "Yes"

Mamma said, "No!"

So then to Yuma they did not go

He loudly declared he would never marry

Take unso-pius-ticated Harry

And with some of his friends, bet a new hat

That he'd never be caught—

And that was that!

Yet, when Mamma said, "Yes"

Papa said, "No!"

Perhaps, to Yuma they may go

Concerning marriage he raves and rants

As to who, in his family wears the pants

But to those of us who are in the wise

Can see with one eye they are not his size

For when Papa says, "Yes"

Mamma says, "No!"

Some day to Yuma, we all may go

Now in Athlete Lane, he was considered quite right

Had a ring side seat at every fight

But now he reclines in his big easy chair

And devotes his spare time to study the fair

So when Papa said, "Yes"

Mamma said, "No!"

Never to Yuma they will go

Women's Club Chit Chat

By THE OLD GOSSIP

The keynote of last week's Club meeting was conservation. Conservation of trees, birds, flowers, all things beautiful.

Very little of the doings of either is news from the viewpoint of a newspaper. It has all been done by someone else before.

At the Women's Club Bridge luncheon Friday, not a single winter coat was in evidence, and the sun streaming through the windows made the smart felt hats and fall dresses seem slightly incongruous.

We observe that the fair Marguerite Kelsey is back among us, and we realize that, lovely as our meetings have been this fall, there has been something lacking.

Do not leave us again, for so long a time, for we do not like to get along without you.

What a prolific place this city of ours is turning out to be. Thirty-eight babies came to the Baby Center Friday, to have their toes examined and their tummies patted and their diet inquired into.

We are glad to have Mrs. Sammons, one of our past presidents, lending her gracious presence to Club activities again.

Be sure to get your reservation in time for next week's luncheon. I hear it is to be an interesting meeting. I'll see you there.

courtesy to the club. How can you or anyone else give publicity to anything unless you know about it? Committee chairmen wonder why something is not said about some affair they have planned. How can it be given publicity when nobody but themselves know about it? I did not think you were being criticized. I thought I was the only one who got that. Newspaper work is loads of fun, sometimes, and then it is a lot of grief at others. Thanking you again for the space given us. I am your well wisher. —Phoebe J. Milburn. A real plan service.
