

Why be a Rough Rider?

MUST you endure the discomfort and expense of driving your car over pavements laid long ago for horse-and-buggy traffic—now scarred with dangerous and unsightly ruts and chuckholes?

Many of our enterprising cities have found that portland cement concrete is the ideal paving material for city streets—just as it has proved itself best for our fine modern highways.

Why not have more concrete streets in your town? They are smooth, safe, durable—and most economical to maintain.

Ask for your free copy of booklet "Concrete Streets." It is filled with interesting facts about paving.

Rippy Says Jail Awaits Reckless Auto Drivers

"Reckless drivers who ignore road rules and thus cause traffic accidents deserve a severe penalty." This statement was made yesterday to Mr. W. A. Harney, district manager of the Automobile Club of Southern California, by Judge Rippy of the local police court.

Said Judge Rippy: "I consider a motorist a reckless driver who drives without due care and circumspection, or who drives in such a manner as to endanger life, limb or property. No intent to injure others need be proved to justify a conviction. Just plain indifference to the rights of others is enough. Such drivers can expect no "silk glove treatment" in my court."
