Edison Co. Will Spend Millions Plans for the expenditure of $130,000,000 during the next five years by the Southern California Edison Company as announced by President E. H. Ballard, have been analyzed by W. Kenneth Hayes, financial editor of the Los Angeles Examiner who points out that $65,000,000 of this amount will be for payroll with immediate direct benefit to all the territory served by the Edison company.

Before the first of September the Edison Company's fifth plant on the Big Creek-San Joaquin River project will be ready for service adding 107,000 horsepower to the company's generating capacity and bringing the total up to 1,948,100 horsepower. Of this total, 573,000 horsepower is from water plants and 476,400 horsepower from steam plants.

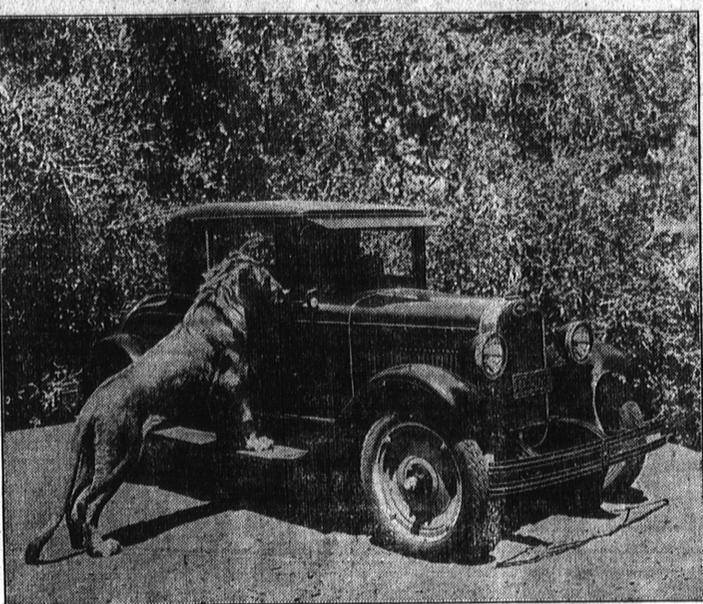

With an abundance of power at hand, Edison activities for the future will be concentrated on the sale of electrical equipment for home, factory and farm, in co-operation with local electrical dealers. It is estimated that 251,000 horsepower of new business from these sources will be added to the lines during the current year.

Hayes' analysis also indicates that the construction of Boulder Dam, under proper legislation, will have the effect of stimulating the business of the Edison company and other power distributing agencies. He quotes President Ballard as saying that the dam should be built by the federal government but power should be developed under the present federal water power act, by those agencies which are to distribute it and that much of the present opposition to Boulder Dam would be eliminated if that act were followed.

On this point President Ballard also said: "Under the most favorable conditions, Boulder Canyon power cannot be expected to be available to this territory for a period of less than fifteen years, and while this prospective development is of a capacity about equal to the present total power demand in Southern California, the adoption and continuance through that period of a development program for the whole territory such as that adopted for our company, will result in the use at the end of that period of five times as much power as may be developed from the Boulder Dam project.

"Most of the power plants constructed during this fifteen-year period will be steam generating plants, the efficiencies of which are constantly increasing and it is quite probable that the actual cost of this steam generated power will be no more than the cost of Boulder power with its several hundred miles of long distance transmission lines. The market for Boulder power will, therefore, be measured by the amount of demand created through connection of new business for several years after the Boulder project is placed in operation.

Chevrolet Popular At California Lion Farm

Caesar, now eighteen months old and who worked in a number of moving pictures when he was small, inspecting the Chevrolet coupe in which Louis Goebel, owner of the Goebel Lion Farm, used to take him to and from location daily. Goebel declares that the lion objected to leaving the car at the end of each journey and even today, though Caesar is entirely too large to be a comfortable companion in a coupe, he will leap into the Chevrolet the moment it is driven into his enclosure.
