Novarro Sings in This Talkie

The circle of persons privileged to hear and enjoy Ramon Novarro's tenor voice will be increased a thousandfold with "The Pagan," new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film coming to the Torrance Theatre Sunday and Monday, June 30 and July 1, in which Novarro sings for the general public for the first time.

One of the chief spare-time interests of Novarro is his "teatro intimo" or little playhouse, built as a part of his home in Beverly Hills. Close friends of the young Mexican actor, who is one of the most reticent of the players on the West Coast, know that he spends a large part of his evenings either at the opera or in his home theatre. The latter, while its extremely intimate auditorium seats only 65 persons, is as completely equipped in proportion to its size as a big amusement house. Resembling the other parts of his home in its Spanish type of architecture, the theatre was constructed about two years ago under the personal supervision of the film star.

It is a well-known fact that Novarro has a rich tenor voice of great promise. He has pursued his vocal studies during recent years under some of the foremost teachers in the country, and now has plans for a concert tour in addition to grand opera. In his private theatre, however, he confines himself to a rendition of ballads and songs for a small, select circle of friends, and to occasional cooperative dramatic performances or film previews.

Over the little latticed door that admits the privileged visitor to this inner sanctum appears the sign, in luminous white script letters: "Novarro's Teatro Intimo." Simply and tastefully decorated within, the slight rows of seats are arranged on a gradual slope leading down to a velvet-curtained stage. The stage itself has every modern device for proper lighting and for scenic effects, so that, except for its limited area, any type of production might easily be given here. Ordinarily the piano is Novarro's organ. He plays himself and he has a special accompanist who is always present when the film star is to give a program of songs in the "Teatro Intimo," however, there is a concealed cockpit, where an orchestra of six or eight pieces may be installed in connection with cinema showings or orchestral concerts.

A souvenir program of a concert given recently at Novarro's home theatre, shortly before his departure for Europe, where he will appear in opera, indicates that the film star's preference is for the songs of his homeland Mexico. A number of Mexican and Spanish folk songs were supplemented on this occasion by Venetian and English ballads of sentiment. Most of the songs were of the type which played a prominent part in the Raquel Meller concerts—little character studies accompanied by pantomime.

Fox Redondo

The coming week's programs at the Fox Redondo theatre include: Mary Brian and Richard Arlen in their new all talking picture, "The Man I Love," showing on Sunday, June 30 for one day only. Little three-year-old Douglas Scott with his brown curls and cherubic smile is cast as their son.

The Monday and Tuesday, July 1 and 2, feature at the Fox Redondo will be "The Idle Rich," William de Mille's picturization of the famous stage hit, "White Collars." Conrad Nagel, Bessie Love and Leila Hyams head the cast in this all talking picture.

"Thunderbolt," a recent all talking masterpiece of Bancroft and Von Steiberg is the feature at the Fox Redondo for Wednesday and Thursday, July 3; and 4. With "Underworld" it seemed that these two, star and director, achieved the greatest things possible on the screen, but "Thunderbolt" in the all talking screen medium, the miracle workers have perfected a new and greater picture of life in the little known milieu of the underworld.

Fox Hermosa

"The Far Call," Allan Dwan's latest Fox-Film production will be the feature at the Fox Hermosa theatre Sunday and Monday, June 30 and July 1. It takes its theme from Kipling's "Rhyme of the Three Sailors."

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey" is the feature for Tuesday and Wednesday, July 2 and 3, at the Fox Hermosa. This is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's much heralded filmization of Thornton Wilder's celebrated novel. Lily B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Emily Fitzroy and Duncan Rinaldo carry the leading roles.

The Friday feature for June 28th at the Fox Hermosa is "His Captive Woman," with Dorothy Mackaill and Milton Sills heading a score of other stars.
