Clark, Mrs. J. Walker, Mrs. Mary Eubelen, Mrs. Alma Roberts, Mrs. Ethel Sydney, Mr. G. A. Barlow, Misses Fay and Trisxie Thacker, Nell Munsie, C. Robinson, May Stunsted, Billie Cook, Zola Kenney, Tilly Scott, and the surprised honoree, Mrs. William H. Bremder. Many of the guests were employees of the Torrance Laundry. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

WANDA SINGS AT BENEFIT

One of the most successful benefit affairs of the year was given Tuesday at the American Legion clubhouse when the July Guild of the Catholic Altar Society entertained with a bridge luncheon.

A feature of the afternoon was the vocal numbers given by Miss Wanda Stachowicz. Miss Stachowicz, who was accompanied by Mrs. Frank Buffington, sang an aria from the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana", "Tress", by Rossbach, and as an encore sang "O Sole Mio," by Capua. Miss Stachowicz and Mrs. Buffington were presented with lovely corsages of panicles.

The luncheon tables, about which one hundred and thirty guests were seated, were decorated with summer flowers. Red and blue checked table cloths gave an appropriate setting for the unusual menu. Bridge honors were awarded to Mrs. E. L. Matthews, second to Mrs. Jesse Wilson of Huntington Beach, and third to Mrs. A. W. Meizer.

Mrs. Roy Coufer was awarded honors for high score at five hundred, and Mrs. B. M. McMaster, second, and Mrs. J. O. Beebe was the winner of the door prize.

Mrs. Charles Daley headed the committee in charge of the affair, assisted by Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Mrs. Thomas Linsen and Mrs. Charles G. Hornall.

MRS. VONDERAHE ENTERTAINS CLUB

Patel shades were employed attractively in the decorative theme when Mrs. Charles Vonderahe entertained her club at a dessert bridge party at her home on Carson street last Thursday afternoon.

A novel idea was expressed in the aces, which were admirably modeled to represent the various Kings, Queens and Aces in the card pack. Honors for high score at bridge were awarded to Mrs. Paul Vonderahe, and consolation went to Mrs. Dewey Quigley. Present were Mrs. Don Baxter, Mrs. R. F. Bishop, Mrs. Paul Vonderahe, Mrs. W. C. Darnell, Mrs. Louie Smith, Mrs. C. L. Ingold, Mrs. C. M. Rohrer, Mrs. Dorothy Murphy, Mrs. Ray Schlick of Los Angeles, Mrs. Dewey Quigley, Mrs. Walter Schlick, and the hostess, Mrs. Charles Vonderahe.

CLUB PICNIC HELD AT BANNING

A delightful picnic was enjoyed by members of the Helping Hand club and their children when they took basket lunches and went to Banning Park last Friday.

Games furnished the diversion of the afternoon. Seventeen members of the club were present and fifteen children.

FRIENDS SURPRISE CASSIE HANSEN

The birthday of Cassie Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hansen, was the occasion for a pleasant, informal surprise party given by Mrs. Hansen at her home on Carson street.

TWO PATRIOTIC PARTIES GIVEN

Crepe paper, centrepieces of red, white and blue, from which emerged American flags, formed the attractive decorations for the luncheon tables when Mrs. L. L. Fordice entertained the Lafalot club at a dessert five hundred party at her home on Marcelina avenue last week. Flowers in the three colors were used effectively about the rooms.

Miss Katherine Oriman was awarded honors for high score at cards, Mrs. George Piper second, and Mrs. T. L. Wertz third.

Places were marked for Mrs. Paul Vonderahe, Mrs. J. O. Moore, Mrs. J. F. Cook, Mrs. George Piper, Mrs. J. O. Beebe, Mrs. R. L. McFarland, Mrs. Charles Corn, Mrs. Lucy Deadrick, Mrs. W. C. ## Rotarians Hold Party at Johnston's Ranch

To the accompaniment of prolonged applause from the three hundred persons attending the third annual Rotary club outing at Mr. and Mrs. Warren Johnston's ranch, Sam Levy was formally made president of the club Saturday night.

With W. Harold Kingsley as master of ceremonies, the Rotarians and their wives enjoyed an extensive program that lasted from Saturday afternoon until the following day at the attractive Johnston ranch near Escondido.

President is "Demoted"

Installation ceremonies were held after a sumptuous barbecue dinner, served in a beautiful grove of trees near the ranch house. The new officers of the club are Mr. Levy, president; Don Findley, vice president; Ed Nelson, (re-elected) secretary and treasurer; Dave Roberts, sergeant-at-arms; and Dr. George P. Shidler, song leader. President Levy is expected to announce his committees for the year at today's meeting of the club.

Following the custom of the district convention, Dr. J. S. Lancaster, the retiring president, was "demoted" to the place of a member of the club. According to a member who was interviewed today, "Dr. Lancaster was put down to a mere member in order that he might begin all over again." Mr. Findley assisted in the "demotion" of the former president by reviewing Dr. Lancaster's term of office in a humorous vein. Bats Are Forgotten

R. R. Smith presented a fine occasional chair to Mr. and Mrs. Johnston in recognition of the pleasure afforded the entire club at the outing. Dr. Shidler made the presentation speech when Dr. Lancaster was given an open-faced gold watch in tribute of his services as president.

Because the Rotarian who was to bring the bats for the baseball game had forgotten to pack those necessary articles, the annual game was not included in the program of events. Croquet proved to be the most strenuous recreation of the week-end, it was reported.

Hay Losses Attraction

After the dinner and program, dancing was enjoyed by the club members and their wives. This lasted until a late hour and then the idea was furnished sheeping accommodations in the ranch house while the men occupied cots in tents. A few hardy Rotarians found accommodations in the hay loft, but sleeping quarters apparently had lost its attraction.

One member who "holed-in" in the hay Saturday night, declared today that two years ago all the men were in the hay and last year about two-thirds of the members present at the party also spent the night in their wives. This year E. W. Huddleston accommodated a few couples at the Johnston ranch, which adjoins the Johnston ranch. The party disbanded about noon Sunday to return to Torrance.

Miss Euca Lyptus Tells Reporter of New Styles

"Just getting a new dress," replied Miss Euca Lyptus—one of the prominent Lyptuses of El Prado Park—to a question asked by an inquiring reporter for the Herald and News today.

"My brothers and sisters on the south side of El Prado Park are already exhibiting theirs and we Lyptuses on the north side are getting ready to show the new silhouette styles this week."

The reporter had approached Miss Euca Lyptus to learn what she, as dowager of the noted tree family, thought of the trimming being done by the city.

"We like it very much," Miss Lyptus continued. "You see, we were getting a bit top-heavy with all our green finery and in time would possibly become rather dangerous in high winds."

"Many people do not realize that we Lyptuses enjoy this trimming. It gives us a chance to break out and to come out in less than a year with a beautiful new growth."

"Perhaps you read recently of another distinguished member of our family, Mr. Lyptus who stands at the corner of Robertson and Pico boulevards in Los Angeles.

He was given the credit for being the most beautiful Eucalyptus in Southern California.

"Well, we in El Prado Park will show him a thing or two when our city dressmakers look us over in a year," she said with a pardonable smile.

In Current Style

Then the tree went on to explain how the pruning would develop the eucalyptus family on El Prado avenue. She declared that the work of the city was being done with especial care so as not to endanger their lives and to design trees that will add a great deal to the beauty of the street when the new foliage is brought forth.

"Although we will conform to the slenderizing styles so much sought after by our feminine friends this year, we will show Torrance next year that we will again be right in the mode," Miss Lyptus confided.

"You know, the 1931 styles are going to be fuller and more bouffant than this year and we will continue to be the best-dressed trees in this district," and with a smile, Miss Lyptus dismissed the reporter in order to watch the city pruners work on her twin sister a few feet away.

Legion Auxiliary Picks Delegates

is Invited to Long Beach Meeting, July 26

Delegates to the state convention of the American Legion Auxiliary, August 18 to 20, were chosen by the Torrance Auxiliary at a special meeting held last Tuesday. The following were elected to attend as representatives of the local organization: Mrs. Phyllis Budge, Mrs. Caroline Collins and Mrs. Roxie Sleath. Alternates chosen were Mrs. Annie Greiner, Mrs. Alma Smith and Mrs. Lucille Lewellen.

Mrs. Greiner, Mrs. Budge and Mrs. Sleath attended a 19th District luncheon in El Segundo Tuesday, it was reported. The local auxiliary has been invited to attend a meeting in Long Beach, Saturday, July 26, at which time the state president, Mrs. Margaret Kaeding will initiate new members of the 19th District.

"Dennis for Justice" Campaign Now On

office twice by councilmen elected by the city. Mr. Dennis was born in Iowa but has spent most of his life on the Pacific Coast.

Experience of Mayor

"In Hillsboro, Oregon, where he was a member of the council for nine years and mayor for six years, he was so highly regarded that he was chosen to represent the State of Oregon on the commission in charge of Oregon's exhibit at the Panama Pacific International Exposition in 1914," Mr. Findley said.

Mr. Dennis was married 47 years ago and has been a resident of this city for the past eight years.

Many of the problems to confront a justice of peace have already been met by Mr. Dennis, according to Mr. Findley, who declared that in small cities such as Torrance and Hillsboro, Ore., the clerk take their troubles directly to the mayor for guidance.

This experience, the "Dennis for Justice" committee believes, lends Mr. Dennis additional qualification for the office he is seeking. The committee is planning an extensive campaign in behalf of the mayor.

DANCE SCHEDULED

Knights of Pythias are planning a dance to be held Friday evening, July 26, at their hall.

Home Nursing Hints

By Grace L. Smith, R. N.

(Editor's Note: This is the first article in a series written especially for the Herald and News. It is hoped that the information given by Grace L. Smith, a registered nurse, will be of value to readers of this paper. "Home Nursing Hints" will appear each week hereafter.)

This is the first of a series on "home nursing" which have been prepared by the writer for the information and guidance of those who are not qualified nurses. Too often in the past patients have suffered from the lack of knowledge or preparation on the part of those whose duty it has become to care for the sick at home.

Women, by all natural rights, are endowed with the maternal instinct, and by this I mean a motherly relationship to our more unfortunate individuals. Nursing is distinctly a woman's work, and the only profession in which she is admittedly the superior of the male.

The purpose of this column will be to give women who are not nurses by profession a more definite knowledge of how to care for the sick by describing bedside care, forms of treatment and general nursing hints. It is not the effort of the writer to make a graduate nurse by correspondence methods, but to aid the person caring for the sick one and to carry out the orders of the physician intelligently. Many illnesses, if properly cared for, even by an amateur nurse, will terminate much more quickly if the patient is given the proper care.

Call Doctor First

If there is illness in your family, first call the family physician. If you do not have one, call the County Medical Board, describing to them symptoms of the case. They will at once dispatch a doctor who is most familiar with the symptoms described. When the physician comes remember you have called him for advice and not nursing care.

In nursing, kindness, sympathy and unselfishness are paramount. Common sense goes far to insure success, but one must learn to control our emotions, never allowing ourselves to become excited in the presence of the sick person, for it always alarms the patient, and they become worried about themselves. Take a cool, calm, collected attitude in the sick room. Be cheerful, but not jovial and plant the thought in the patient's mind that he is going to get well shortly and that you are doing your best to help him.

Readers May Write In

Always place yourself in the patient's place. Would you like someone around you, who is a chronic groucher or careless in their personal appearance? After you have learned the art of a little happy smile for the sick one you will have done a great deal towards aiding him to get well.

In this column I am going to give nursing hints on the bedside care for many diseases. If however, before subjects appear which are of interest to you, you would like to know more about the care given, I will be glad to help you if you will communicate with me through this newspaper, but please do not ask me to recommend a physician. Remember the county medical board or a first class hospital.

The next article will deal with the preparation of the sick room and proper ventilation. If you have any nursing problem on which you need immediate help, write Miss Grace L. Smith, care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped and addressed envelope.

Hospital Has No Contagious Cases

Officials Brand Report of Entry as False

A report that nearby cities are sending infantile paralysis and other contagious cases to the Jared Sidney Torrance Memorial hospital here was branded as false by the authorities at the institution this week.

It was pointed out that the local hospital does not take contagious cases whatever and further more that there is but one case of infantile paralysis in this section of the county and none in Torrance. This denial was made for the information of Torrance residents in order that they may stop the spread of the erroneous report.
