Believing that there are many people who have interesting ideas which would be of interest to all readers, the Herald wishes to announce that this column is open to all for an expression of those ideas, comments and conditions which affect our social, economic and civic life. The Herald accepts no responsibility for letters published herewith, but is glad to publish opinions of its readers even though these opinions may differ from those of the publishers. We will permit the use of your name in the printed letter, but every communication must be accompanied by the writer's correct name and address. If you do not wish us to publish your name, simply state so at the close of your letter. All communications are limited to 500 words. All subjects, except religious topics, and provided they are not libelous or slanderous, are acceptable. What's on your mind?—Write it for the Herald!

To the Editor:—It seems the people as a whole are very much disappointed with the report of the crime commission. Will we, as a nation, ever learn anything from experience? When did the people ever get satisfaction from governmental investigation of any importance except the oil graft—and it ended in a disgrace by sending a lone half-dead old man to the pen, with the investigators and bribers going free?

The crime commission could not give the cause of crime without incriminating organized society, hence the failure to find the cause of crime. Why spend thousands of dollars of the people's money for investigation when it could be observed from the dome of our national capitol and every state capitol? All we have to do is to get our bearings by digging up our old Declaration of Independence. The Bible says: Prov. Chapter X, verse 15: The rich man's wealth is his strong city; the destruction of the poor is their poverty.

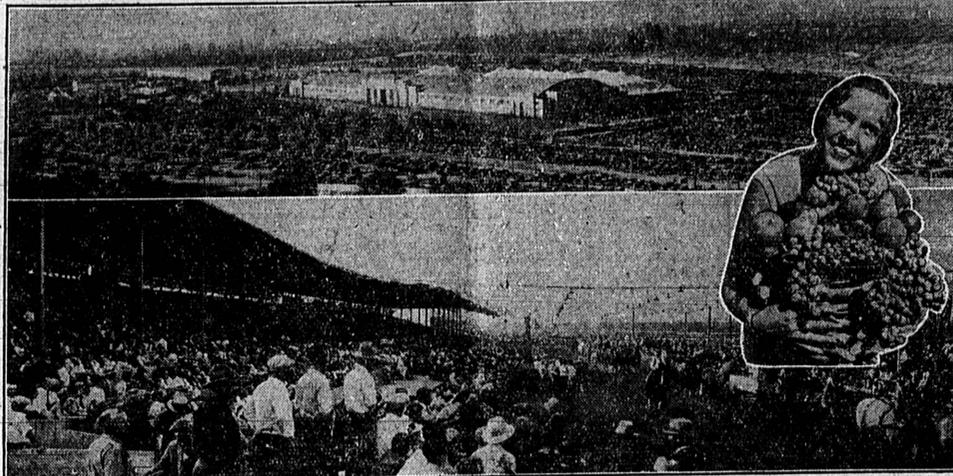

After reading these two principles with a clear conscience and looking the world squarely in the face, we can easily perceive our doing and undoing. Look what we have done through the process of laws, taxation and assessments in different forms. We have dismissed millions of their means of livelihood in desperation and in a spirit of vengeance. Some will operate the laws as a means of livelihood, knowing it is a matter of dog and don. Others more often fight, struggle for a while 'til they can no longer endure and take their own lives and their children's. Oh, if we only look in the closet of our heart we would understand the cause of poverty and crime. When as a boy I read somewhat about a justice of the peace in the backwoods. All he had for his lawbooks was his Bible. The people elected him continuously. The country grew to such extent that they tried criminal cases. But the lawyers objected to him because he did not know anything about laws. Still the people elected him. So, in order to protect the law, the justice of peace was impeached. The first question he was asked was: "What is law?" His answer was: "A whole lot of stuff to defeat justice." The lawyers, unable to disprove his contention, were unable to oust him from office and he was retained as justice.

I am near 67 years old and I believe it is the best definition of law I have ever heard. The Declaration of Independence should be in every home, school, church and in every patriotic organization. No flag can take its place, for only by keeping the principles laid down by it can we ever hope to maintain a government "of the people, by the people and for the people." It is my belief that the motive of the crime commission was more to feel the pulse of the country than anything else. For the rulers of our country are getting nervous; they very well know the worm is going to turn and are looking for a landing place. Note the recommendation for prison reform cottages in places of bars; it is not sympathy for our victims for they would have found the cause and made recommendations to that effect. For we surely will have another class of criminals before long in the pen.

Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Prepares For Notable 10-Day Exposition, Sept. 18 to 27

Above is a birds-eye view of Los Angeles County Fair grounds at Pomona in action. In the center is the great new agricultural building, largest of its kind in the country, surrounded by 30,000 automobiles. The view gives an excellent idea of the great amount of parking space available. Below are thousands of people viewing the million dollar livestock parade, a feature of the closing Sunday program when the blue blooded aristocrats who have won ribbons during the contests will be presented to the great audience. In the insert is Miss Ernestine Driscoll typifying "the spirit of the fair" as she displays a basket of the bountiful harvests.

'Gold Rush' Days Told Clubwomen By Club Member

Not every women's organization has the distinction of numbering among its members one who has shared the hardships and dangers of pioneer days, especially one who has spent many years in the harsh frozen wastes of the north amid the thrilling scenes and incidents of a "gold rush," not one but many of them.

Mrs. M. Louise Lynch, member of the National Business and Professional Women of Torrance, entertained her fellow club members on Tuesday evening, with a vivid description of her 20 years in Alaska. Mrs. Lynch, who in 1897 was a business woman in San Francisco, disposed of her holdings there on the news of the first "strike" and left for the North with a stock of women's wear to enter on a business career in Alaska. After many weeks, from May to July, during which she traveled thousands of miles by steamer and by raft down the treacherous currents of the Yukon river, she reached Dawson, where she set up her store. Some two years later, in company with one other woman, and escorted by 255 men on their way to the new diggings, Mrs. Lynch traveled from Dawson to Nome by dog team in the dead of winter, to be the first white woman to set foot on the site where now rises the well-known city.

some five years she acted as notary and assistant in the recorder's office for that district. Many scenes of comedy, intermingled with others of grim justice and tragedy, were recounted by Mrs. Lynch, together with many bits of information regarding the character and history of the picturesque camps of the North.

As a vacation trip, Mrs. Lynch sailed on the revenue cutter Bear, now out of Alaskan service, but which was for more than a quarter of a century one of the familiar links between the North and the "outside," to Point Barrow, the northernmost inhabited village, where at that time only a missionary and a tiny handful of people kept contact with the natives and greeted the occasional visitors.

Endured Strife and Strain Forced to come "outside" because of illness, Mrs. Lynch spent three and a half years in a hospital, only to be told that a long sea voyage was, in the doctor's opinion, the only means of saving her life. She was placed on board ship for Honolulu; from there she traveled to Japan, Australia, returning to New York and back to Seattle. Later she returned to Alaska, remaining until other interests brought her back to the states. Mrs. Lynch's talk was one of real interest to all, as it had the significance and authenticity of one who had lived among and known all the well-known characters of the Alaskan trails, and had endured with them the strife and strain as well as the joys of that vivid epic of pioneer days.

Protests Denied On Sepulveda Project

Dr. G. del Amo, owner of a large acreage here, most of it in the Sepulveda assessment district, and his son-in-law, F. G. de la Riva, were in the audience before the hearing started but left shortly before the improvement matter was opened. It is understood that Dr. del Amo has no objections to the proposed opening and widening. He is president of the Del Amo Estate Company and de la Riva is vice president.

During the course of the hearing, the protests waxed hot and furious but later on the tenor of the discussion changed to a more humorous tone. John Holm, prominent in Torrance and Lomita, was the only property owner present who spoke in favor of the project, his reasons being that now is the cheapest time to acquire the land and that the work would help alleviate unemployment.

State Building Program Broad

SACRAMENTO.—California, as a state, knows something about building operations, itself. During the 20-year period, 1913 to 1933, the state will have constructed at about 50 different locations, buildings and other structures and engineering works to serve these structures, of a total value of approximately $41,000,000 and involving about 2,000 different projects. These figures, compiled by Geo. B. McDougall, chief of the division of architecture, further reveal that $16,000,000 was expended during the first 12 years of the period, and $25,000,000 will have been expended during the last eight years.

Mysterious Fire Damages House

TRUCK DRIVER ACCUSED OF "ROAD HOGGING" HERE Asserting that a truck, driven by Chitao Komato, Los Angeles, was "road hogging" and would not stand on the right side of the road, Alfonso Hernandez, 711 Amayola avenue, filed a report at the police station setting forth his description of an accident on Torrance boulevard near Hawthorne Tuesday night. Hernandez said his car was badly damaged when he tried to pass Komato's truck which swung across the center of the roadway as he tried to get by.

LOMITA.—Officers are investigating a fire of mysterious origin which damaged a house at 2550 Brethren early Sunday morning. The occupants of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wahlstrom, returned home late Saturday evening to find a light burning in the kitchen. Smelling gas, they investigated and found that the gas stove had been turned on but not lighted. About 2 a. m. they awoke to find the house afire. Quick response by the fire department saved the building, a one-story frame structure. Damage is estimated at about $200.
