New Screen Entertainment Booked For Week

Fifi Dorsay is the one girl in all the world who can even approach Will Rogers at his own game, wisecracking.

Their first day together on this set during the filming of "Young As You Feel," Rogers' latest Fox starring success which opens at the Torrance Theatre Thursday to run for three days only, was filled with a constant exchange of cracks until they had reestablished their old friendship started during their work in "They Had To See Paris," the picture in which they both scored their first talking screen triumphs.

"I can keep up with her as long as she talks straight American," Rogers explained to the amused cast, "but when she starts slipping in their French phrases on me I sometimes have to stop a minute to figure out just what she means. No sir, I got to take my French like I take a wild cayuse, slow and easy."

In the picture, also, Rogers, as Lem Morehouse, dyspeptic old widower, has to stop many times to catch his second wind, as Fifi in her portrayal of Fleurette leads him along the fast road that makes young people old and old people young.

"Mother's Millions" and "Caught Plastered" Are Attractions This Week

They're back again! Wheeler and Woolsey, great comedy team breaking all records in "Caught Plastered," that opens Sunday at Warner Bros. San Pedro Theatre.

May Robson, who is making her debut in "Mother's Millions," is the greatest character actress on the stage today. She had 47 years' experience at it, which should get her an iron cross, or something.

"Mother's Millions" starts Thursday for a three-day showing. Sunday, the bubbling, irrepressible nuts are back again—Robert Woolsey, Bert Wheeler, Dorothy Lee—all united in one, long, grand paroxysm of mirth and laughter, "Caught Plastered." This production opens a new field of comedy, it's different! From the time they roll into a mid-western town via box-car pullman, until they roll the bootlegger king and save the beautiful old lady from the poor house and a pauper's grave, it's different.

With both these feature pictures there are added attractions well worth seeing. Get the Warner Bips, habit.

Stone Brothers Buy Col. Forbes Service Station

Eugene M. Stone and his brother, Frank Stone, announced the purchase this week of the Col. J. E. Forbes service station at the corner of El Prado and Carson. The washing and polishing business of George Natzger, located on the service station lot, was also purchased by the Stone brothers. A complete greasing service with modern equipment has also been added. The business will be conducted under the name of Stone Service Station and all services will be under the one management. General Petroleum products will be featured as formerly.

The Stone brothers are well known in Torrance, where they have lived for the past two years at 1611 Cedar avenue.

The Stones took over the operation of the business this week. Col. and Mrs. Forbes have not announced their plans for the future, but will first take an extensive vacation trip.

Editor, Torrance Herald:

In your column, "Right From the Shoulder," I would like to express an opinion on the present system of electing people on the election boards. In those times when the only wage earner of the family is many times not able to secure work and fully capable of serving on the election boards, people are selected (mostly women) where there is another source of income in the family.

Is this fair to the taxpayer and American citizen at large? Men who served their country in her hour of need suffer with the rest. Why is this? By whom and how are these people appointed? It certainly does not make for good citizenship.

Just read the names published as election officials and see if I am not correct. I would like to have an answer through your columns and above printed. No names to be mentioned.

TAXPAYER

In answer to this letter, City Clerk Bartlett said this week: "Every election official for city, county, state and national elections must present an application for the position to the County Board of Supervisors. This application must state the person's qualifications, such as being able to read and write; being a qualified voter in the precinct in which the position is wanted and other data. The supervisors then appoint the officials for the elections. No city clerk or city official has anything to do with this matter whatever. I would advise those who wish to serve on election boards to send their applications in to the Board of Supervisors at any time."

Editor, Torrance Herald:

There seems to be quite a little uproar over what merchants said about the school store in your last week's issue, but after careful investigation I find that the schools forget to add to the price of the merchandise they are selling the
