DEMOCRACY

Contributed by George F. Shidler, President, First Voters' League, Torrance

Article No. II.
Maine goes Democratic—the stock market falls off several points. This shows the reaction of special privilege to a party that promises open and fair business. The "big boys" are scared. In spite of the billion dollars that they threw into the stock market this month to try and create another false show of prosperity.

Maine went into the primaries to show the faith of the people in the next president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt.
The Democratic party is no reform party. Reform movements fail because reformers have no program. The people have a program this year which will bring certain definite results. For instance, let us consider the tariff pledge. It affects Southern California directly.

Quotes Coiden

Mr. C. J. Coiden points out: "Los Angeles is tremendously handicapped when its domestic trade territory is compared with that of other great industrial centers such as New York, Philadelphia and Chicago which are surrounded by a territory teeming with population, farms and factories. For a thousand miles into the interior we are encompassed largely with barren mountains and thirsty deserts."

"But when we look seaward and follow the great ocean highway we find manifold opportunities of commerce that a sparse interior population denies us at home. There's the Orient, the greatest potential market in the world. In the Orient are hungry millions, eager to consume our foods and fruits from our farms and groves, eager to buy our automobile tires, machines, gas and oils, and the innumerable products of our factories."

"We think of the Orient as far away," Coiden continued. "But when measured in the cost of transportation of our commodities, we find the Orient, the world's greatest market, is NEARER THAN PHOENIX AND TUCSON which lie at our doors. To give you a concrete example, it costs about $10.50 to ship a ton of cotton from Phoenix, Ariz., to Los Angeles Harbor and you can ship the same ton of cotton from Los Angeles Harbor to Kobe or Yokohama, Japan, or the ports of China for about HALF THAT SUM. Such are the tremendous advantages of water transportation."

"What is true of China is true also for South America, Siberia, and other countries, and we in Southern California are now being deprived of the development of this commerce through the destructive results of the Hawley-Smoot tariff. Through the wicked provisions of this tariff, we have lost our fruit market in Canada, our fish market in France, etc., and our oranges are selling at 12 to 16 dozens for 25 cents on our local highways. It is plain that only by judicious revision of the tariff these evils can be remedied."

"Don't be confused by the prohibition issue which the Republicans have raised but for or against which they refuse to place themselves on record. While to some of us it is a big question, there are far more important questions today—tariff, anti-trust law enforcement, strict supervision of Federal Reserve banks, protection of the small investor, and a definite settlement of financial questions brought on by the World War such as the bonus and foreign war debts. Most important of all is the question, 'Whether this nation, or any nation, so conceived and so dedicated can long endure.'"

Motor Vehicle Code Revamped At Next Session

Many Suggestions Made to Commission Revising Present Law

SACRAMENTO.—(U.P.)—Abolish the speed limit entirely on California highways. . . . Raise the present limit from 45 to 50 miles per hour. . . . Permit the department of motor vehicles to revoke operator's licenses of reckless drivers without a hearing. . . .

These are just three of the major legislative proposals being prepared by a joint legislative committee authorized by the 1931 legislature to "revamp" California's entire motor vehicle code.

The proposals range from changes in the speed limit to reductions in license fees. It seems that everyone has some sort of a change in mind concerning motor vehicle laws.

Headed by Assemblyman W. B. Hornblower of San Francisco, the joint legislative committee appointed an advisory committee consisting of representatives of all automotive and traffic interests. The advisory committee, in turn, divided its work among 10 subcommittees to work out the recommendations for changes in the motor vehicle code by the 1933 legislature.

As soon as it became known that the motor vehicle code was to be "revamped," the joint committee became swamped with proposals of every kind. Some of the suggestions were considered worthwhile and others were discarded immediately by the advisory body.

Russell J. Bevans, registrar of the department of motor vehicles, firmly believes that more scope should be given the department in revoking operator's licenses of reckless drivers—in some instances without the necessity of a formal hearing.

The committee's work of revamping the code has not yet been completed, but it plans to have a complete set of proposals to recommend to the 1933 California legislature when it meets next January.
