"Bombshell" A Wow! Jean Harlow and Lee Tracy A Great Co-Starring Team

JEAN HARLOW

For the first time Jean Harlow and Lee Tracy—two of the picture world's most colorful personalities—are starred together in "Bombshell," the picturization of Hollywood film life which will be seen tonight, Friday and Saturday at the Torrance Theatre.

Directed by Victor Fleming, veteran master of camera beauty, "Bombshell" presents one of the most unusual and hilariously humorous pictures that have come out of Hollywood.

Jean Harlow as Lola Burns is a sensational and glamorous film star who has been made famous by the genius of her press agent, Lee Tracy.

It is this publicity that plunges Miss Harlow into all of the woes that beset her throughout the action of the screen story—her headline love affairs, her revolts with the studio executives, her worries with her trouble-making family and the additional woes heaped upon her by movie-crazed fanatics.

It is a made-to-order part for Miss Harlow who gives it all the punch and vitality which filmgoers have come to expect of the heroine of "Red Dust" and "Hold Your Man."

The supporting cast is uniformly excellent, featuring such competent players as Frank Morgan, Franchot Tone, Pat O'Brien, Una Merkel, Ted Healy, Ivan Lebedeff, Isobell Jewell, Louise Beavers, Leonard Carey, Mary Forbes, C. Aubrey Smith and June Brewster.
