85 Children Take Part In Easter Egg Hunt

Total Attendance of Over 1000 Recorded At Playgrounds Last Week

Last week in Torrance, a total of more than 1000 children took part in organized games and handicraft, free hour play and hobbies at the recreational centers under the supervision of Miss Josephine Odell, playground director, and her assistants.

Walteria playground recorded an attendance of 365. On Friday, Walteria sent two baseball teams to the municipal park here to play against teams of this section of the city. The Torrance girls team won, 18-17, and the boys lost to Walteria, 7-3.

On Saturday afternoon 85 children took part in the Easter egg hunt at the playground on Cabrillo Avenue. Richard Newman's efforts were very profitable as during the search he found a worn and faded dollar bill which made him the center of envy of all the other 84 kids.

A wiener bake at the park attracted many youngsters including a large group from Walteria, who had a big time and lots to eat. All Torrance children over 3 years of age who wish to go on a picnic, Saturday, April 8, are requested to bring lunches to the recreation center, 1316 Cabrillo Avenue, and be on hand at 8:30 a. m. when the truck will pick them up. Two or more supervisors will accompany the crowd so that parents need not fear to permit their children to attend.

The story-telling hour, under the leadership of Miss Phillis Knorr, has been changed to Saturday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock.

General Petroleum Enlarges Scope of Marketing; Promotions Follow

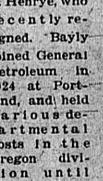

Important promotions and transfers among the sales personnel of General Petroleum Corporation, made necessary by the enlarged scope of the company's marketing activities this year on behalf of General Mobilgas, were announced yesterday by A. H. DeFries, vice-president in charge of sales.

In the Southern California field, the record sales increase produced last year under the direction of Don Dawson, Southern California division manager, has been recognized by the company's decision to consolidate the Arizona with the Southern California division under his direction this year. With him, as assistant division manager, he will have F. C. Davies, noted war-tima aviator, who recently was transferred from Seattle to Los Angeles as division office manager for Southern California.

F. C. Davies

Division manager in Southern California since 1928, has been promoted to the position of division manager for Washington with headquarters in Seattle. He succeeds George A. Henry, who recently resigned. Bayly joined General Petroleum in 1924 at Portland, and held various departmental posts in the Oregon division until transferred to Los Angeles in 1928.

Don Dawson

H. G. L'Heureux, who has been assistant division manager in Washington for a number of years, will remain in that position.

G. V. Haymaker, who has had charge of General's sales in the Arizona field up to now, has been promoted and transferred to San Francisco as assistant division manager of the Northern California division under Division Manager A. J. Donnelly. Donnelly himself received an important promotion late last year when he was transferred from sales activities in Los Angeles to take command of the northern sales territory.

C. H. Wartman, who until now has been Donnelly's assistant, is stepped up of the post of manager of refined oil sales in the home office sales department, Los Angeles. Both Haymaker and Wartman came to General Petroleum in 1927, Haymaker from the Magnolia Petroleum Company, another Socony-Vacuum affiliate, and Wartman when he gave up his activities as an independent oil distributor.

State Board Starts Removal of Billboards

Outdoor Signs Removed From Highways As Traffic Menace

SACRAMENTO, (U.P.)—California's war on signboards erected along highways began in earnest recently when the department of public works started removing billboards which violated provisions of the outdoor advertising act.

The act became a law August 21, 1933, but a six months' "grace" period was allowed for the purpose of giving board owners a chance to save their property.

Under terms of the act, signs and structures are subject to removal if they violate the following provisions:

1—If within 300 feet of an intersection or intercepting highway, except in subdivided areas or in cases where buildings already obscure the view of the motorists.

2—If within 300 feet of an intersecting highway and railroad right-of-way.

3—If obstructing clear view of the approach of vehicles on highway for a distance of 100 feet.

4—If within the highway right-of-way.

5—If imitating warning, stop or danger signals.

6—If with red light or blinking lights likely to be mistaken for a danger signal.

7—If in a drainage channel.

8—If unsafe for storms and wind.

The drive against advertising signs will be directed particularly toward boards located in the vicinity of curves, intersections, underpasses, bridges and railroad crossings, or within drainage channels where flood menace may occur, according to Morgan Keaton, assistant deputy director of public works, who is in charge of the campaign.
