

Burglary Charge Will Be Heard

Tom K. Knight, arrested on complaint of Beas M. Long, manager of the Mountain View refreshment stand at Narbonne and Wilmington-Redondo boulevard, was charged with burglary and will come before the Lomita township justice court on July 20 at 10 a. m. for preliminary hearing. A second man involved in the case is being sought by officers but had not been apprehended yesterday. Knight is being held in the county jail in default of $2500 bail pending his hearing.

Lomita Is Called To Torrance Fire

The Torrance fire department was called out late Tuesday night to stand by for Lomita when that department was called to a small fire at the Carter Sloan lease in the west part of Torrance. Apparently the parties who turned in the alarm did not know that the call should have come to the Torrance department, as the location is in city territory, and called the Lomita truck instead. The small Torrance truck was sent to the Lomita station while that department handled the fire.

REDONDO COBBLER'S APPEAL FOR NEW TRIAL IS REFUSED

Date of Execution for the Murder of John W. Whitehead In Walteria a Year Ago Will Be Fixed This Week

Date for the execution of Charles D. Tedesco, Redondo Beach cobbler, was scheduled to be fixed momentarily this week, as the result of a Supreme court decision late last week which denied the convicted man a new trial.

Tedesco appealed from a superior court sentence which ordered him to be hanged, after he had been found guilty of the first-degree murder of John W. Whitehead, on July 18, 1932. The appeal was argued several months ago before the supreme tribunal in the state building in Los Angeles.

Whitehead's body was found a few feet off Redondo-Wilmington boulevard the night of the slaying, with his head beaten in with a blunt instrument. Nearby was found a shoemaker's hammer, and on the hammer a hair identified as from Whitehead's head. The hammer was identified as having been taken from Tedesco's shoe repair shop in Redondo Beach. A pop bottle also was found near the scene of the murder, and bell-tale fingerprints definitely linked Tedesco to the crime, the state contended at the trial.

A short lapse of time was not accounted for to the satisfaction of the jury that heard the case, and he was found guilty, with no recommendation for leniency. The state produced evidence to show that Tedesco had taken out a life insurance policy on Whitehead, the company's policy which premium only a short time before the murder. A tramp who had camped along the highway told investigators that he had been awakened by a scuffle and that he had heard a man cry out: "Don't kill me, Charlie." These things all were reviewed when the case was argued before the seven justices in Los Angeles. Justice Langdon alone dissented from the opinion of the other six justices.

Decision Monday On Condemnation Times Property

Los Angeles City Attorney Recommends Costly Suit Be Dropped

According to the pressure brought by taxpayers and the results of a campaign through the smaller but more influential newspapers of the county, the Los Angeles city council today has under consideration the abandonment of the condemnation suit to acquire the old Los Angeles Times property at a fabulous price.

Decision must be made by next Monday, July 16, when the suit is scheduled to go to trial for the second time. The county affairs committee of the council, to which the matter was referred, has before it a four-page letter from the Los Angeles city attorney, in which he recommends abandonment of the costly litigation "until there is a REAL public demand therefor." The city attorney also said that sufficient money should be on hand to carry out the ultimate city center plan.

Every taxpayer in the county would pay approximately 7 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation if the condemnation suit should be carried to a new conclusion, it is now indicated. The supreme court has ruled that the county and city must pay for the old presses and equipment, as well as for the site and the ornamental building with its tower and 3500 lights which cover it. The Times was dissatisfied with the $1,021,000 awarded it previously. Seven cents on the tax rate at that time would have amounted to $1,000, it is computed.

Room For 5,000 Youths In County CCC Camps Starting This Week

Any Los Angeles county youth who wants to enroll in the county CCC camps, at a salary of $30 a month, may register in Room 200 of the Welfare building, 434 South San Pedro street, Los Angeles, it is announced by the charities department.

Another 5000 youths will be accommodated from this county, county charities officials were advised today in advices from San Francisco. Immediate steps are being taken to fill the 5000 new enlistsments.

Enlistments must be for not less than six months, according to A. C. Price, assistant superintendent of charities. The age limit remains from 18 to 25 years, as formerly, and the young man must have dependents, and must agree to send $25 of his earnings back to his dependents. Applicants must be citizens and physically able to work.

School vacation enrollments between terms cannot be accepted, Price stated.

There are no more persons to be taken off charity rolls and transferred to these CCC camps, so the 5000 vacancies will go to any eligible young man, regardless of his financial condition, Price said. Failure of other counties in the state to fulfill their quotas has given Los Angeles the 5000 new enlistsments. This being the largest county in the state, and the mecca for transient youths, it was decided to increase the county's allotment to 6535 jobs.

County Farm Bureau

POULTRY INDUSTRY ASKS FOR EGG AGREEMENT HEARING

Southern California poultrymen and handlers of eggs will be glad to know that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, after looking over the agreement prepared by egg distributors and producers, is ready to take the next step in working out an agreement. Forms asking for a public hearing were mailed to Mr. Frank Hudson, secretary, Los Angeles Produce Exchange.

These forms have been filled out and are now being signed by representative organizations within the district covered by the agreement.

The following organizations have signified their intention of signing the government petition asking for a public hearing in Los Angeles: Produce Exchange of Los Angeles. Seven Southern Counties Farm Bureau Poultry Department of the California Farm Bureau Federation. Poultrymen's Cooperative Association of Southern California. Poultrymen's Cooperative Association of San Diego. Fontana Cooperative Egg and Supply Association. San Joaquin Valley Poultrymen's Cooperative Association. The California Farm Bureau Federation.

This information comes from L. D. Sanborn, assistant farm advisor in Los Angeles county, who further states that the administration is not interested in an egg marketing agreement unless a united poultry industry can reach an agreement.

Both producers and distributors of eggs, according to Sanborn, have, after looking over their business records of the past few years, and considering the possibilities under the Agricultural Adjustment Act, united their efforts to im-
