erased sales they will have under our plan" and while insisting that the readers of the California State Pension plan were not endorsing any candidate for office, it is known that John Dockweiler, Democratic aspirant for governor, deserved support of "all senior voters" for his endorsement of the $30-a-week-for-life proposition.

O'TOOLE IN SUPPORT OF STATE PENSIONS
Giving his unqualified support to the California Pension plan, James J. "Jimmie" O'Toole, Democratic candidate for assembly, 68th district, declared this week that in his estimation there would be no permanent solution to the problem of unemployment, and the consequent lack of opportunity for youth, until adequate pension provision is made for those who are not wanted by industry and other active pursuits. O'Toole has received recognition from the pension plan headquarters in their broadcasts over Station KMTB recently. It is reported by his campaign committee.

McQUARRIE CHAMPIONS $30-WEEK PENSION
Giving his unqualified approval of the California Pension plan, Charles W. "Doc" McQuarrie, Democratic candidate for Congress for the 17th Congressional District, reaffirmed his championship for an adequate pension protection for our aged, disabled, widowed, and orphaned citizens.

McQuarrie said: "It is my firm belief that the California Pension plan offers a logical and American solution to the most acute phase of our economic problem, that is, the proper distribution of buying power. The removal of persons past 50 from the employment rolls, without destroying their purchasing power, will act as a stimulus to all forms of business, as well as give our young folk a chance to obtain work that will enable them to maintain their independence and self-respect."

needed in the vicinity of Spurlin Court," he declared. "There is a large number of small youngsters there who cannot get to the city park because of the distance. I wish the city council would put a fourth proposition on the November ballot which would permit our voters to express themselves on the small playground idea. Lots can be bought very cheap now and the cost would be a fraction of what is proposed for the larger recreation propositions."

RECONDITO EDITOR COMMENDS CITY
Major John J. Berry writing in his "High and Low Tide" column of the Redondo Daily Breeze Monday commented: "We commend the City of Torrance for its appreciation of parks and playgrounds. It is announced that further development of recreational areas is proposed under a $100,000 program which includes a federal appropriation of $48,000. With the federal government offering practically 50 percent co-operation on projects of this nature, the municipality failing to take advantage of it is allowing a very attractive opportunity to pass."
