

When Oregon's Beavers Won

Here's come hard hitting, at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, as Oregon State's left tackle, Vic Sears, stops Ray Bartlett, U. C. L. A. right halfback, after long end run. The Oregonians won, 7-4.

Miss Lute Fraser Called East; Aged Father Succumbs Sunday Night

Called back to Oklahoma by the serious illness of her aged father, who passed away Sunday night, Miss Lute Fraser, secretary of the Herald since August, 1923, left last Saturday night for Wewoka. Don R. Fraser would have been 96 years old Nov. 29. He had been in excellent health until the past few weeks.

A native of Pictore, Nova Scotia, Mr. Fraser came to this country with his parents in 1850. They settled in Oakville, Illinois, a small Scottish community outside Mt. Carroll in Carroll county.

When he was 17 he enlisted in Company I of the 92nd Illinois Regiment and served in a number of engagements of the Civil War. He was among Sherman's forces when that Union general conducted his army on the march thru Georgia and was captured by Confederates while engaged in this march.

Mr. Fraser then spent 18 months in seven southern prisons, including the infamous Andersonville where he was confined for the last 10 months of the war. On his return to civil life, Mr. Fraser was appointed a U. S. revenue officer in Iowa. Later he studied and practiced law in Brooklyn, Iowa, where he was married to Julia Horrigan in 1870 and where two of his five daughters were born.

After several years he returned to Illinois and became the owner and publisher of the Carroll County Herald, a position which he held with esteem for a number of years. Always active in Republican politics, he was appointed state printer of Illinois when Joseph Pifer was elected governor in 1888. His wife died in 1895 and he moved to Savannah with his two youngest daughters.

Retired Past 80 Public service held its appeal for him and he became deputy county clerk of Carroll county. In 1903 he moved to Wewoka, Oklahoma, where he was appointed U. S. constable attached to the U. S. District Commissioner's office. Later he was advanced to the commissioner's position. He occupied this position with distinction and then resigned.

Mr. Fraser was not thru with civil service for he became postmaster of Wewoka, serving several terms, and was elected justice of the peace. He was past 80 when he finally retired.
