Greeks Were Holding Crack Italian Troops Such as These

Stubborn resistance of the little Greek Army, reminiscent of Finland's heroic stand against gigantic Soviet Army, is causing embarrassment to crack Italian troops such as these, who put on show for Mussolini before Ital-Greek war started. Famed by Italian censor.

American Aide to Chinese Forces Enroute Back to Chungking After Visiting Sister Near Here

"Japan will never conquer China... She would not have penetrated so far today if the United States had not furnished her with war supplies, cash in the form of trade and allowed shipments of aviation gasoline to Malay States where it is transhipped to Japan."

So declared Daniel F. Myers, brother of Mrs. William Hatt of Berendo street, Monday night. He should know whereof he speaks because he is a technical advisor to the Ministry of Finance of the Chinese Nationalist Government with headquarters in Chungking.

Myers left yesterday on the China Clipper from San Francisco to return to his post. He left China Sept. 9 to bring the ashes of his late wife to the States for interment. She passed away in Hong Kong last June. Myers was accompanied by his 10-year-old son who will remain in this country with relatives. The boy was born in China.

Mrs. Hatt entertained 30 guests at a chicken dinner Monday evening in honor of her distinguished brother and afterwards 100 more friends attended the one-house bon voyage party for Myers. A buffet supper was served at the Hatt home, 21602 South Berendo street.

War is stalemated. Because of his position with the Chinese National Government, headed by Gen. Chang Kai Shek who is the idol of his beleaguered people, Myers may be considered an authority on at least the Chinese side of the conflict provoked by Japan. The war in the Orient is stalemated at the present time, he says, because Japan lacks resources to penetrate further and the Chinese government is dependent upon the only means of ingress and egress to its mountain capital Chungking—the Burma Road.

"I have been over the Burma Road many times," Myers said. "It is a masterpiece of highway construction that is carrying 30,000 tons of material a month into and out of China. War supplies are shipped over it going into China and Chinese products, natural and manufactured, are shipped out over it. Twelve thousand trucks, according to the last report, are chugging over it daily. But the Burma Road is not the only route into oppressed China. From Ning Po, near Hong Kong, smuggled goods are sent to the interior—the Japanese being unusually susceptible to 'palm-ol' or bribery."

No Yanks in Actual War
 Myers went to the Orient as a truck engineer of an Indiana motor manufacturer who was invited to set up a factory in Manchuria. He was chief engineer of the plant at Mukden until that part of China was taken by the Japanese in 1931 and the factory was lost. From there he went to Peking and in 1934 began his service with the Chinese Nationalist Government.

He has the balance of a very informal contract with the government to work out until next July but he expects to remain in China after that. He is one of eight Americans associated with the Ministry of Finance. There are several Britons in the service. A number of other Americans are serving the Chinese as instructors in the air corps but none participate in actual warfare.

China regards the United States as its greatest friend. Myers pointed out, and then commented: "But we, as a nation, have done little to help her in her great trial. We loaned China 25 million dollars but this was on condition that not one penny was to be spent for war materials. We have taken Japan's products without limitation and paid her cash which was turned into good use against China."

A Super-Rich Area
 The "New Order in Asia" as promoted by Japan seeks to establish Japanese hegemony over Greater Asia, meaning the Philippines, Burma, India and Australia, Myers declared. If the Japanese were to accomplish this, U. S. economy might be severely dislocated. Materials for a range of products all the way from tires to electric-light filaments, from tea to teak, from tin for canning to quinine for malaria, would become drastically scarce in the U. S. until substitutes could be produced in sufficient quantities.

There are many other things Japan could and would like to get, Myers continued. On the globe the East Indies lie scattered as if a careless creator had dashed a hamper full of specially rich soils and raw materials off the continent of Asia into the southeastern Pacific. The area produces almost all the world's supply of rubber—84 per cent—and most of its tin, 75 per cent. It yields more petroleum than all the rest of the far East. It supports vast plantation crops such as sugar, tea, coffee, rice, tobacco, cacao, coconuts and various fibres and woods.

Road Hard to Hit
 Japan does not seek extra territory as "breathing space" for its people, Myers pointed out because Japanese labor cannot compete with Chinese labor. The difference is the difference between American and Japanese standards of living. But Japan wants China's manpower to produce goods for Japanese distribution, he said.

Myers discounts stories of Japanese pilots' success in bombing the Burma Road, declaring that Japan has no dive-bombers for penetrating the mountain fastnesses which grid that busy artery. Because of the terrain, Japan's DC-4 bombers must fly at great altitudes and bombing the Burma Road is like this:

"Lay a piece of thread on the floor and then try to hit it with a needle dropped from your hips—it's hard to do. That is the same as bombing the Burma Road," Myers said.

Evening School Students Enjoy Halloween Party

In celebration of Halloween, students held a pot luck party last week. First gathering in the gymnasium, there was dancing to records. Interspersed with the dancing were games. Most popular of these was a card game which produced hilarious results.

After dancing and playing, the crowd went to the cafeteria where cakes, cookies, peanuts, potato chips and coffee were enjoyed. According to custom, the men had to clean up, but a few women took pity on them and helped.

The success of the party was due to the splendid work of the committee in charge: Luke Nichol, Thelma Jensen, M. J. Holloway and Francis Bradley. About 65 people attended.

SUNDAY STUPIDITY
 One of the paradoxes of Sunday driving in California is the large number of persons who drive at breakneck speed to get exactly nowhere.

THE GUY KNEW WHERE HE LIVED

Two elderly Jewish gentlemen, strangers and from different parts of the country, found themselves eating side by side at a small restaurant in the World's Fair, and they got to talking. They talked of the Fair, the weather, and then one of them wanted to talk about the inevitable—politics. He said:

"Well, vot do you tink about taxes?"
 The other one said: "I like it. Dot's vere I HF."
 The other asked: "Vot do you mean, dot's vere you HF?"
 Said the other: "In Taxes. Dot's vere I HF."
 The first one was disgusted. He said: "You dunt un'erstan. I'm talking about dolla's."
 "Sure," said the other. "Dolla's Taxes—dot's vere I HF."

Of Course He Picked a 'Torpedo'!

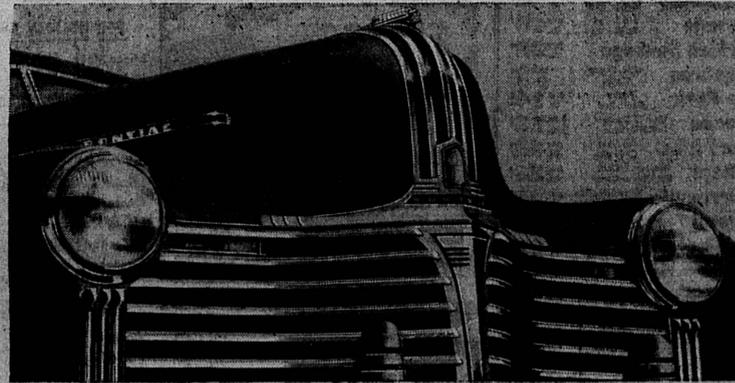

Chief Torpedo Officer of the United States Naval Base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, William E. Swango arrived at the Pontiac plant recently to take delivery on a 1941 Pontiac De Luxe Torpedo Eight. Mrs. Swango points to the torpedo emblem on her husband's uniform. "I've handled torpedoes for years," laughed Swango, "but this is the first time I've ever driven one."

H. I. Lang is head of Torrance Motors, exclusive Pontiac dealers in this community, located at Gramercy and Cabrillo avenues. He has had 20 years' sales experience with the General Motors Corporation and comes to this city from South Gate where he was manager of a motor firm. Lang is now living in Torrance with his wife and daughter. The first community trust was established at Cleveland in 1914.

high school. Bill Thoma, well-known to many motorists here as an able, trustworthy mechanic, will manage the Torrance Motors' shop and service departments. Thoma has been a resident of Torrance for several years and, until recently, was manager of his own garage.
