This verse from the Psalms is the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Life" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist.

Among the Scriptural selections are these words from Luke: "And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die. And when he heard of Jesus, he sent by the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant. . . . And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself; for I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof; . . . but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed. . . . When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick."

Passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, state: "Every law of matter or the body, supposed to govern man, is rendered null and void by the law of Life, God." "In infinite Life and Love, there is no sickness, sin, nor death, and the Scriptures declare that we live, move, and have our being in the infinite God."

We Lead Dictators Far in Motor Cars

There is approximately one motor vehicle for every four persons in the United States and in this respect our country leads the dictators of the old world by far. Totalitarian Germany, for example, has only one car to 41 persons, and in Italy the ratio is one to 88 persons. In Russia the ratio is one car to 213 persons, and in Japan one to 338.

Closest to the United States is France, with a motor vehicle to every 17 persons. Next is the United Kingdom with one such vehicle to every 19 persons.

Russia occupies about one-seventh of the land surface of the globe.

"I WAS A HEADHUNTER"

By Lewis V. Cummings

The title, "I Was a Headhunter" creates a rather weird spine-chilling effect. The story is a weird, spine-chilling tale, almost too fantastic to believe, almost — I say — but not completely. When Lewis V. Cummings, the author, left Bogota, Colombia, with three little donkeys as traveling companions, little did he realize the life that was waiting for him on the great red jungle river, the Guaviare. And little does the average person know about the customs, the way of living led by the Indians of the river, the headhunters. Consequently, Cummings has taken opportunity to tell us of the life he led, as a warrior of the tribe, as a headhunter.

A fascinating friendship, partnership and understanding is unveiled in the meeting of the Spaniard, Jose, and of Cummings, two men who have left their world of civilization at a time when the first World War was eating the heart of the earth, found to their liking a tribe of people entirely untouched by the wave of civilization. Jose had been with the tribe some time. Cummings had just arrived and he was immediately accepted as one of them.

Jose taught him how to hunt, fish, make himself amazingly comfortable with the forest as his department store. They also taught him how to shrink human heads! The most startling episode in his story, in my opinion, is the account of the ceremony of warrior initiation. Such a story has never been told before to my knowledge and could never be told in a more vivid manner. The author did not stop at accepting the ways and means of living from these headhunters; he carried on in laudable style the affairs of a warrior when he took in marriage three of the little brown daughters of the tribe, all in the same night.

I have read quite a number of travel and adventure books, but never have I read any as astounding as this. If you are wondering whether Cummings captured and shrunk any heads for himself, I say only this: he did join a hunt for human heads and what happened on the trail — I leave for you to discover along with the innumerable other true, though startling, tales.
