150 Guests at Wedding of Norma La Verne Warthan

In a beautiful candlelight ceremony the wedding of Miss Norma LaVerne Warthan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Warthan, of 650 Border ave., to Mr. Everett Glen Myers of Compton was solemnized Friday evening at Central Evangelical Guild Hall. Rev. H. Wesley Roloff officiated in the presence of 150 guests. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white slipper satin with long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Her bridal illusion finger-tip veil fell from a pearl beaded coronet and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and pink sweet peas. Mrs. E. R. Treloar attended her sister as matron of honor. Her gown was rose chiffon and she carried yellow roses and orchid sweet peas. Miss Betty June Pierson, maid of honor, wore shell pink silk faille and her flowers were an arm bouquet of pink roses and yellow sweet peas. Miss Barbara Jean Horton of Los Angeles was bridesmaid. Her gown was sea green net over satin, and she carried pink sweet peas and yellow rosebuds.

INTEND TO WED

Fashions Coming Down to Earth?

Just when styles are soaring to new heights, pretty Carol Bruce of the movie suggests that perhaps hat fashions at least may be coming down to earth. Her parachute hat tops off an outfit with copper airplanes for buttons.

DIARY of a BEAUTY AUTHORITY by Helena Rubinstein

"Perfume is as personal as a love-letter," says the world noted beauty authority in the following article.

Some people can read character by handwriting. Others offer to tell you all about yourself by the color of your eyes or the shape of your nose, the lines in your palms, the stars of your birthday.

A fascinating business-character reading, and almost everyone has a favorite method of deciding, at first acquaintance what another person is really like.

I have often found the key to a woman's personality in the fragrance she chooses to wear, for perfume is as personal as a love-letter, and instantly reveals a woman's temperament and way of doing things. I could close my eyes in a roomful of women, and my nose would tell me the different types of women who were present.

Select With Care

The fresh outdoor scent of apple blossom, for instance, immediately identifies for me, a woman who is completely feminine, a little on the helpless side—fond of decorating and fashions, gardening and hostessing. The exotic fragrance of orchid perfume calls to my mind the picture of a chic, sophisticated woman who has travelled widely and whose conversation is well worth listening to.

Because perfume is such an important personality accent, it should be selected with the utmost care. Age is a foremost consideration in selecting perfume. A young girl should never use heavy scents, nor should the average woman over 50. There are, of course, occasional exceptions. Sarah Bernhardt loved exotic perfumes and used them to the day of her death, when she was past 70. Her personality was an extremely vital and youthful that anything else would have been out of harmony. Imagine the immortal Bernhardt using lavender!

Hair coloring should be left out entirely, in selecting perfumes, otherwise all blondes would confine themselves to rose and violet scents, and all brunettes would wear heavy Oriental fragrances. There are many blondes who are just as vigorous in temperament and coloring as brunettes and many brunettes whose delicate beauty is far better suited to floral scents than to heavy musk odors.

Two Import Rules

The best key to the right perfume is, of course, temperament and personality. Thus, if a woman is tall and slender, and loves dark colors and silky lines in fashion; if she plays golf well and loves to dance, then she should choose a sophisticated, gala perfume. If, on the other hand, she is the tailored, conservative type who believes simplicity is the essence of chic, and if she shies away from modern art and furniture, then she should wear a well-blended, subtly appealing town perfume. Or, if she is a natural wholesome beauty who is happiest when she is wearing tweeds or a riding habit, then her perfume is a woody country fragrance.

Two important rules to remember in applying perfume are: perfume from the inside out. Do not dab perfume on a dress or a handkerchief. Spray the hair, the skin, the lingerie. Second—become a devotee of the atomizer.
