

'Pump Army' at Hendy Plant to Push Bond Drive

Starting an innovation and at the same time getting a first-class working aggregation on its way to really do things, key men of the "pump army," recently mobilized at the Lomita plant of the Joshua Hendy Iron Works, Pomona Pump Division held what they called their "kick-off" dinner Tuesday night in Redondo. They made plans to put over the 10 per cent War Bond drive that got under way yesterday.

Forty-five persons attended the festivities at which "Gen." Harry Howard of the general staff was the principal speaker and Glynn Ogden, personnel director, was master of ceremonies.

The entertainment included showing of colored war films in promotion of the bond drive. "Lieut. Gen." Joe Stegmeyer, "Gen." Eddie Morford of the local plant; Eugene Tytus, plant manager; Ben Hersfield, representing the Treasury Department; Donald McKenna and E. C. Madden of the general staff; George Dolan, Al Moore, assistant to Howard at Pomona; R. C. Sims, Don Hall and C. L. Barrett, visitors from the Pomona establishment, and others enlivened the evening with short talks.

Workers Are Officers
The "pump army" which had its generals, colonels, majors and captains at the dinner is unique in that the men with rank as designated are workers in the plant and office. No department head is allowed to get a rating above that of lieutenant.

The idea of the organization, according to Joe Stegmeyer, is to develop a sure method of communicating any important message to all in the plant in the shortest possible time. Another objective is to sell bonds and the speed with which the drive got under way proved that the idea will work.

Old Papers Wanted by School Here

Here's a chance to get rid of your stacks of old paper and magazines that you have been accumulating since the last effort was made to turn them into war production.

The student body and P.T.A. of the Fern Avenue school will conduct a paper drive next Tuesday and Wednesday, May 4 and 5. Anyone having old papers — and who hasn't? — should bring them to the school on those days. Those unable to deliver the papers to the Fern Avenue grounds should call Torrance 834 and arrangements will be made to have the donations picked up.

Bus Official Advises Against Vacation Trips

Repeating his advice to the traveling public not to do any non-essential traveling during the coming months, F. W. Ackerman, vice-president of Pacific Greyhound Lines, advises people to stay at home this summer and spend the money they would use for a trip to buy additional War Bonds.

Acknowledging that this is unusual advice coming from a company whose business is to promote travel, Ackerman pointed out that winning the war is far more vital to everybody than taking week-end or vacation trips.

Ackerman said that he fully agrees with the statement made by the director of the Office of Defense Transportation, to the effect that there will be little room for vacation or pleasure travel this year, and added that buses are already crowded with military traffic war workers, and other passengers whose business is important to the nation's welfare.

WHY YOU SHOULD INSIST ON PROPERLY AGED MEAT:

Meat is precious these days. Under rationing, most families are getting along on less meat than they would ordinarily buy. But a shortage in meat quantity is no reason for a shortage in meat quality. You owe it to your family today to insist on tender, good-tasting meat every purchase—and by this we mean properly aged meats.

What aging does for meat: Home economists, meat experts and famous chefs have agreed for years that even finest quality meats lack full eating tenderness and flavor until they are properly aged. You know from your own meat-buying experience that when meat is too fresh—not well aged—it is likely to be tough. Only properly aged meat can be fully tender, flavorful and easy to digest.

How meat is aged: Meat aging is quite a job for the meat expert, and it requires adequate facilities. Each cut and kind of meat must be held a certain length of time according to its special nature. And during this aging process, temperature and humidity within the aging room must be exactly controlled. All these steps are taken at Safeway's unique Central Meat-handling Plant in Los Angeles. Meat received at this Safeway Plant is run on overhead hangers directly into the aging room. Each carcass is tagged to show weight and day of arrival. These tags provide a method of controlling aging time for each carcass. They also make possible proper movement and rotation through the aging room. After aging, the meat moves into a breaking and cutting room where retail cuts are prepared.

Aging saves waste: It is actually wasteful to serve meat which has not been properly aged because such meat can be tough, unpalatable and hard to digest. Correctly aged meat is moving to market these days. Your best assurance of getting this tender-tasting kind of meat is to buy every time where well-aged meat is guaranteed... to buy meat at a Safeway Market.
