

Civilian Ross Reunited With Family Here

With six years spent in the U. S. Army, Phillip E. Ross, who had a rating of staff sergeant, received a discharge at Fort MacArthur on August 17, and has accepted a position at the Howard Supply Co., Wilmington.

Ross, who lives with his wife, Eva, and three-year old son, Phillip, Jr., at 25829 Eshelman ave., Lomita, was overjoyed to be reunited with his family, particularly his small son, whom he had not seen since he was but a few months old.

Serving with the field artillery of the Seventh Army, under both General Patton and General Patch, Ross has the following campaigns to his credit: French Morocco, Tunisia, Sicily, Anzio Beach, France, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He received the Bronze Arrowhead, distinguished unit badge, French Fourragere, good conduct, and has been recommended for the bronze star.

Students Must Have Work Permits to Get Unemployment Compensation

With the opening of school in various parts of the state, the problems of the California Department of Employment are increasing, according to James G. Bryant, chairman of the California Employment Stabilization Commission.

Bryant said today several instructors have telephoned local offices of the Department, inquiring as to whether they should "let students out of school so they could certify for unemployment insurance."

Policy of the department, Bryant said, is not to pay unemployment insurance to students, on the grounds that while attending school they are unavailable for work, and the instructors were advised as to this ruling.

However, the department may pay students in the event they hold work permits, which would allow them to take jobs even though they are under age. If the students hold such permits, he said, they generally are considered available for work.

"The large number of students who worked in various fields this summer, with a resultant building up of wage credits, has caused a large number of student claims," Bryant said. "However, the Department feels that students are not available for work, except possibly in rare instances, and consequently, cannot pay them insurance under the law while they are attending school, assuming, of course, they have no work permits."

EGGS ARE PERISHABLE
Even with the best of care, eggs deteriorate rapidly in quality and flavor, and if stored at room temperature are unfit to eat in as little as a week. Recent studies have shown that the best place to keep eggs is in the crisper of the refrigerator or, lacking a crisper, in an open dish or cardboard container in the bottom of the refrigerator.

CORN FLAKES
Corn flakes can be substituted for bread crumbs in scalloped dishes, using the recipe as is otherwise.

Immunization Of All Small Children Asked

H. O. Swartout, M. D., Dr. P. H. A noted health authority has said that when ALL babies are immunized before reaching the age of nine months, then will the conquest of diphtheria be accomplished.

The preventive treatment is harmless. A little swelling and soreness usually appears at the place of inoculation, but it disappears within a few days. There may be a slight fever for a short time.

Babies should be immunized at six to nine months of age. About six months after the treatment, the Schick test may be given to make certain that immunity or protection has been established. This procedure takes but little time, and like the immunization treatment, leaves no scar. If within the next two or three days a red spot appears on the arm, it shows that immunity has not yet been established and further protective injections are necessary.

Two or three years later, or at least before entering school, a child should have either a Schick test or another immunization treatment, or both, to make sure he is safe from the disease.

Regular immunization programs are now starting in the public schools where school and county health officials give these treatments. Parents should avail themselves of this opportunity to protect their children which is offered in their child's school, including those of pre-school age, or arrange to have it done by the family physician. Many physicians combine whooping cough immunization with diphtheria immunization for young children, which is a very good idea.

Navy Seeking Enlistments for V-5 Program

New Director of Naval Officer Procurement for the Eleventh Naval District is Lt. Comdr. Keith F. James, relieving Comdr. P. J. McNurien, who leaves shortly for Chicago where he will head the naval officer procurement program for the Ninth Naval District, it was announced today.

James, who has been on duty in local naval circles since April, 1942, announced that the Navy is now seeking enlistments for its V-5 (pre-flight training program), which is continuing at the same level as before the end of the war.

Qualifications: Age—17 and 18-year-oldsters, provided no induction notice has been received;

Education—high school graduate or will graduate before Oct. 1, this year.

Mental—must pass appropriate tests;

Physical—qualify for flight training, which means 20/20 vision without glasses, 115 pounds weight minimum, 200 pounds maximum, between 5-feet 4-inches and 6-feet 4-inches in height, no dental or organic defects;

Citizenship—a male citizen for at least 10 years.

James pointed out that applicants should obtain a certified copy of their birth certificate, a complete transcript of scholastic credits, parents' consent, two letters of recommendation, and three photographs, then report to their nearest navy recruiting station.

In Los Angeles, applicants are being interviewed at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, 411 West Fifth street.
