

Quick Air Travel In Future Is Prediction

Torrance to Seattle by air in less time than it takes to motor to Los Angeles. That was the prediction for the "not too distant" future made by a representative of the Aircraft Industries Association of America.

He went on to predict regular nine-hour passenger service between Los Angeles and New York. Jet-propelled passenger planes capable of traveling 1500 miles an hour would make the high speed rate schedules possible.

Passenger planes designed during the war to carry 100 to 200 people are now under construction and these giant, high-speed planes are merely signs of the astonishing things to come—and soon.

NO CZARS WANTED

American scientists prefer that top authority in the proposed National Research Foundation be an appointed board of scientists and interested laymen, and not a single individual with the powers of czar.

Warning Against Fire Carelessness In Winter Voiced by Chief McMaster

"If you see the fire trucks going by more often in cold weather, it isn't because our firemen are trying to keep warm," said Fire Chief J. E. McMaster today, in reminding Torrance residents of winter fire dangers.

"It's because cold weather means more fires. Turning on the heat at home is one of the biggest causes of fire," explained the Chief. "Use your fuel to heat your house, not to burn it," he advised.

The chief started his list of precautions with the roof. "Your house should have a fire-resistant roof to protect it from sparks or neighboring fires. Your chimney should be inspected for cracks and soot. Have it cleaned and repaired if necessary."

Continuing into the house itself, he stressed the importance of proper insulation. "The chimney should be insulated so that the walls nearby are not too warm for your hand. The same holds true for flues and pipes, especially where they are near woodwork. A particularly dangerous spot is the place where the smoke pipe enters the chimney."

"Many heating fires begin in the furnace room, the chief pointed out, "either because the furnace is defective, or because it is not given the right care. The furnace should be inspected and cleaned before the heating season starts. If you have been getting along with a furnace too small for your needs during the war, now is a good time to have it replaced. The furnace should be never forced, or allowed to overheat."

Fuel storage is another important item in winter safety, the chief explained. "If you are storing coal, see that it isn't packed too tightly, and try to use first the coal which has been piled first. If you use oil, have the oil tank and lines carefully inspected for leaks. And store your oil outside the house, if possible.

"Portable heaters can be dangerous if not carefully used. Place them where they cannot overheat woodwork or furniture, and where they cannot be knocked over. Electric heaters should be in good repair and, of course, they should carry the approval label of the Underwriters' Laboratories."

New $120,000 Nursery For Care of Wards of Children's Home Society

California's unwanted babies who begin life ill, underweight or requiring special care will find a new $120,000 nursery and clinic awaiting them after Dec. 10 when the Children's Home Society of California opens in Los Angeles one of the most modern buildings of its kind.

The non-profit society, one of the state's two adoption agencies, last year placed more children in permanent homes than any similar organization throughout the nation. President Leroy Goodrich revealed in announcing the opening of the new facility. "In addition to the nursery for 30 newly-born infants, there will be a clinic for examination of children of all ages and a wing for training classes and other staff activities," Goodrich said. "Generous private contributions have made the serious, well-needed structure possible and it is a major step forward in our effort to meet unprecedented pressure created by the state's mushrooming population. Even considering that the society has placed 17,000 children in permanent homes since its organization 84 years ago, we still could service twice as many children if we had the funds and facilities. At present, we have about six applications for every child available for adoption."

Women Convicted Of Child Neglect Getting Lessons

Essentials in child-rearing and care are being taught in classes at the County Jail for mothers and women who have been sentenced for child neglect or for contributing to the delinquency of minors, Lieut. Vada Russell, chief matron of the women's section, announced.

The classes, taught by Florence Hargis, Registered Nurse, of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Red Cross, are being held twice weekly over a three-week period from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. The group was formed voluntarily, and the women are enthusiastic, Lieut. Russell said.
