LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Torrance Herald:

It is not difficult to get anyone to admit that something is lacking in the relationship between Torrance schools and Torrance citizens. Following is the problem as I see it.

There is no organized group of parents in Torrance which can go to the principals of the four schools and discuss with them the needs of each particular school, a group that will say, for instance, "Mr. Principal, we need more high school space in Torrance. Can we help you in any way in making the present high school into a junior high and having a new building to provide adequate facilities for senior high students?"

One or two scattered groups of parents have gained the things they wanted from the school board in the history of Torrance schools. The great weakness in this plan is that very few private citizens, working on a volunteer basis, have been interested enough to stick with it. It is too much to expect of human nature, to ask a small group of parents, unrecognized and unrecognized, to continue working through the years on new ideas and progressive measures for the schools of Torrance.

I believe that there should be some responsible group in Torrance, organized, and paid, if necessary, to work closely with school administrators. There are three possibilities which will come to the reader's mind. The first is the P.T.A.; the second, which has lately been advocated by some, a coordinating council made up of representatives of every organized group in Torrance; the third, a local school board.

The P.T.A. is a national organization concerned with the overall picture of schools throughout the country. It does not take upon itself problems of individual schools. If members wish to take up problems of their particular school, that is done aside from regular P.T.A. activities. Usually the P.T.A. women who have ideas for the betterment of their school are busy with administrative duties of the P.T.A. and district meetings of one kind or another that they have neither time nor strength left for the individual problems of their school.

The second plan, a coordinating council: It is reported that coordinating councils are working very well in other communities, San Pedro for instance. The work of a coordinating council is to bring pressure to bear upon school boards, City Council, or whatever body necessary to obtain improvements or reforms. This is another volunteer group, whose individuals may or may not see fit to stay with a project until it is completed. It is also non-dues paying, and only slightly organized.

I believe Torrance would greatly benefit by a local school board, a Torrance Board of Education running the Torrance schools, paid like any other "City School Board" as outlined in the Education Code of the State of California. This body would be interested in Torrance schools. It would manage tax moneys as outlined by the Education Code of the State of California. It would know why such things as an adequate cafeteria were being held up 11 or 12 years; this board would know for sure if interest was sufficient for well-equipped shops. The school board members would make it their business to find out why night schools in neighboring communities were successful and night schools in Torrance were not. But most important of all, things that took place at school board meetings would be published in local papers where the people who were most interested could keep in touch with what is going on.

Can you feature the Los Angeles City Council handling Torrance business at its meetings? People would like to know if it was really material shortage that kept extra school rooms from being provided, or whether it was just a result of more pressure from the group that got the material. If pressure was necessary, why didn't we apply some? Perhaps the administrators of the local schools would not appreciate parents' interest to such an extent. Yet, I prefer to believe they would.

Editor, Torrance Herald:

You are to be commended on your fine stand in favor of taking our schools out of Los Angeles control.

Do you have space for this little reference to findings of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Education Association, published recently in booklet, "It Pays."

"What makes business good? The U. S. Chamber of Commerce reports these findings:

"The ability of people to produce. "The ability and desire to buy. "What makes people good producers and consumers? The U. S. Chamber of Commerce found that: "Where schools are best, average incomes are greatest. "Where schools are best, retail sales are greatest. "Where schools are best, rentals for homes are highest. "Where schools are best, more telephones are used. "Where schools are best, more magazines are read. "Where schools are best, fewest men were rejected under Selective Service. "Education makes people good producers and good consumers. "Money spent on schools is a sound investment."

You have given much space to the things that are "holding Torrance back." It long has been my firm belief that if Torrance people controlled their own schools, if the money spent on schools by Torrance could be spent in Torrance instead of half of it going to Los Angeles, as you point out, we would have a thriving city of homes and factories, and the conditions which the U. S. Chamber of Commerce finds. "Where Schools are Best" would prevail in Torrance. We need the community pride and spirit which goes with owning our own schools.

For Congress, 17th District

James L. (Roy)

ROSENBERG

Editor .. Author .. War Veteran Lecturer .. Historian

FOR CONGRESS, SEVENTEENTH DISTRICT

ROSENBERG IS THE ONLY REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE. HE DID NOT CROSS-FIRE. HE HAS BEEN UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED BY EVERY REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION IN THE 17TH DISTRICT

He is free to vote and act as his conscience dictates. He does not owe allegiance to any group or organization.

He has no slush funds, billboards, or advertising budget.

PERSONAL QUALIFICATIONS

James L. (Roy) Rosenberg was a machine gunner in the First World War with 18 months service in France. His son was a Browning Automatic Rifleman in the Second World War, who served with Patton's Third Army, as an enlisted man in the thick of many battles.

He knows the veteran's problems. He has helped many of them solve their housing difficulties. He has heard hundreds of their stories.

While soliciting "big gifts" in a campaign to build a $325,000 YMCA for Inglewood, Rosenberg contacted personally more than 75 little businessmen, manufacturers, industrialists and employers in the 17th District. Most of them, he found, had serious reconversion or renegotiation problems which threatened their very existence. Some of them were being "price-fixed" out of business by the OPA. He helped more than a score of them, by appealing their cases personally to bureaus in Washington, and setting many fires along the way.

He has resided in the heart of the 17th District for 18 years. He knows its people, and their hopes and ambitions. He knows its problems and its needs.
