

Customers' Corner

How do you like the fresh fruits and vegetable department in your A&P store?

Are the vegetables fresh and crisp—as they should be? Are the fruits firm and ripe—as they should be?

Are the displays neat and orderly—as they should be? Are the clerks helpful and courteous—as they should be?

We maintain buying offices wherever and whenever fresh fruits and vegetables of top quality are available. We rush this produce in refrigerated trains and trucks to our warehouses and stores. We price it to sell quickly and we inspect it constantly all along the line for any sign of deterioration.

In other words, all our efforts are aimed at offering you only the finest and freshest fruits and vegetables.

If we ever fail to do this, we will consider it a favor if you will tell us about it. Please write:

Beef Accompaniments Found to be Numerous

There's hardly a food that doesn't go with beef. Its hearty flavor almost demands that it be served with a different food each time, and this is more than possible when you consider how well all beef cuts, from a lordly beef roast to a homey, family stew, mate with other foods.

More than that, beef goes well with each of the seasonal foods. Springs tender young vegetables, whether cooked or in a peppy tossed salad, have added goodness for being served with a tender Salisbury steak or meat pie.

Spring fruits, too, lend savor to beef. The next time you, have a beef roast, serve it with tart rhubarb sauce in orange cups.

In the summer, when garden produce is at its best, there's many an opportunity for a good beef and vegetable combination, whether served indoors or out. Maybe it's a picnic, with a sturdy meat loaf carried right to the picnic site in a pan, and accompanied by a varied and generous assortment of crisp vegetable relishes. Or maybe it's beef kabobs, threaded on a roasting fork with sweet onions and tomato halves, then roasted over glowing coals or broiled indoors.

Fall finds savory squash, corn, green pepper, apples, pears and egg-plant on the scene, and even better for being included in a meal with beef. Green peppers stuffed with ground beef is one of fall's most special treats, while breaded, egg-plant slices make a fine accompaniment for a homey dish such as braised arm steaks.

Winter-time means hearty foods, and here beef shines again, in stews and meat pies accompanied by hot biscuits and mixed vegetable salads. Ground beef is the basis for adding flavor to some of the filling one-dish meals and casseroles so popular during this season.
