

Noodle, Spaghetti Dishes Improved by Use of Olives

Several novel noodle and spaghetti dishes, using sliced olives and other ingredients, have been developed by the University of California Food Technology Division. Noodles were cooked in boiling water until well plumped and drained. Then they were mixed with sliced olives, sliced onions, sliced garlic, a trace of dry basil leaf, chopper green peppers and a small amount of water in which the noodles were cooked. The mixture was heated to boiling. The dish gains in flavor if some tomato sauce is added.

In another experiment at the College of Agriculture, egg noodles were precooked in boiling water, and drained. Canned boneless chicken was broken into small pieces and added. Also added were sliced olives, a little garlic, onion and some canned tomato sauce. As for spaghetti dishes, spaghetti was cooked in boiling water, drained and mixed with 8 ounces of sliced cheddar cheese, 8 ounces of chopped olives and three and half pounds of precooked spaghetti. The dish can be further improved by the addition of tomato sauce.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR CARE OF NEW HOME, FURNISHINGS TOLD BRIDES

Keep it clean. This should be a cardinal rule for brides in setting up housekeeping. Spic and span freshness, which is possible with ordinary good care, preserves the life of lovely drapes, carpets and upholstered pieces.

This is the season when the careful homemaker descends with fury on the house to prepare it for summer living. Heavy winter drapes are taken down to be cleaned and stored and to make way for sheer, airy curtains. Cool-as-a-cucumber slip covers shield precious upholstered pieces from the heat and dust of long sultry days.

Deep-piled, luxurious carpets or rugs are often taken up entirely for the summer months. This isn't absolutely necessary if ordinary cleaning is carried out regularly.

However, it does give the carpet or rug a rest from summer traffic. In the fall it is welcomed back as an old friend, too. Be sure that wool floor coverings are immaculate before storing them. Shampooing should be done by a good professional rug cleaner. Beware of wet shampooing yourself, as damp seeps through to the back of the rug.

Carpets or rugs should be rolled on a cone and tightly wrapped in heavy, clean paper. If you do not have a clean dry place to store the rug, your cleaner will do so for a nominal fee.

Beautiful fabrics, whether for windows, furniture or floor, deserve good care. When they get it, they serve you well.
