FOREST FRESH CHRISTMAS TREES

I am proud of their freshness... They will last longer and are more fire resistant.

Residents Invited to See School Yule Decorations

Residents of the area have been invited by the administration at Torrance High School to visit the school to view the elaborate Christmas decorations erected by the students in the main hall, according to Mrs. Harriet Hardy, girl's vice-principal.

"I think the students are to be congratulated for their efforts in attempting to present something better than the commercial aspect of Christmas," she said.

On display in the main hallway is a student art display and a huge white Christmas tree, purchased by the student council and decorated by the art department.

Other Yuletide activities during the pre-vacation period included a Fellowship Club Party last Friday. The members of the club, a group of non-secular students, presented and explained many of the familiar symbols of Christmas. The club is sponsored by Helen Lockwood, former YWCA director in Torrance.

Tomorrow, members of the school's choral groups, under the direction of George Zavislan, will tour the campus singing Christmas carols.
