Pair Praised For Stand on Planning Issue

Claiming that the City of Torrance needs men who will stand up and fight for the citizens of the community, A. D. Gianni, chairman of the Planning Commission, came forth with unsolicited praise this week for two council candidates.

Gianni saluted Harvey B. Spelman and Willy G. Blount for the stand they have taken on city planning matters.

Spelman and Blount recently reversed a recommendation by the commission on its recommendation which was overridden by the City Council. They told Gianni that the Council should follow the recommendations and investigations of the planning body and not let politics enter into decisions which should be rendered for the good of the majority of Torrance residents.

Said Gianni: "Torrance is in the process of expanding rapidly. Planning is a highly important matter at this stage of the city's growth. Highly as important, also, are planning-minded councilmen."

"Approximately 25 per cent of the workers employed in Torrance live here. Actually the homes we are building are for Torrance workers. We must see that these people have homes in well planned, carefully laid out tracts and especially not next to hog ranches, dairies and the like."

In a letter to Gianni following action by the City Council which reversed a recommendation by the Planning Commission, Spelman and Blount wrote: "It is our opinion that the Council should work and cooperate with the Planning Commission as well as other city commissions. We feel that the present Planning Commission is well qualified to recommend zoning variances to the Council. Due to the fact that this is our introduction to political life, we shall eagerly seek counsel and guidance from the Planning Commission."
