

Torrance's Auxiliary Police Celebrates First Anniversary

LIFESAVING . . . technique with a resuscitator is demonstrated here by Captain Gene Walker of the Torrance Fire Department.

Celebrating their first anniversary this month are the 65 members of TAPs, the Torrance Auxiliary Junior Police. Organized last summer by the Torrance Police Department to promote good citizenship, a sense of responsibility to the community, and development of leadership, the group has doubled its membership during its first year. TAPs will be busy during the next few weeks selling tickets to the Annual Police Show because their organization gets 100 per cent of the profits.

SHOWING . . . Nancy Levesque and Sam Held, how candle smoke can take the rind off a shiny run-sight is Officer Donald E. Nash.

MARCHING . . . In the Armed Forces Day parade this summer, the TAPs presented a striking picture dressed in their natty uniforms and marching like seasoned veterans.

LINED UP . . . for a trip to Ice Follies, last fall, members of the Torrance Auxiliary Police stopped long enough in the check-in to let a photographer snap their picture.

KIBITZERS . . . watching Officer D. C. Cook show Noella Morin and Larry Bryant how to hold a rifle soon got their turn. Cook taught the TAPs that the proper balancing of the weapon and accurate sighting can make them all sharpshooters.
