

How to Get to Beverly Hills Stadium Friday

If you plan to go see the Tartars tackle the Beverly Hills Normans tomorrow afternoon, here's one way you can get there:

Go north on La Brea to Olympic boulevard. Turn left and go to Spaulding drive (about two miles west of Robertson boulevard). Turn north (right) onto Spaulding drive. The school is just across the street from 20th Century Fox studios.

Game time: 2:45.
Admission price: 80 cents.

Tartars Seeking First League Win at Beverly

Coaches Rex Welch and Cliff Graybehl, charged with the fates of the Tartars, will take about four tons of football beef to the home fields of Beverly Hills tomorrow afternoon in an effort to pick up a Bay League victory.

Bouncing back from the stinging defeat handed them last week at the hands of the Santa Monica team, the Tartars will be seeking revenge tomorrow at the expense of the Normans.

Some changes are being contemplated again in the backfield, Welch said yesterday, but he was not ready to announce the starters for tomorrow's game. No major changes are contemplated for the line, according to Graybehl.

While the Tartars are visiting Beverly Hills, Inglewood will be at Leuzinger, El Segundo will be at Santa Monica, and Burroughs of Burbank will be at Redondo. The Redondo-Burroughs game will be a practice game, while the others are league tilts.

Rev. Schauer Announces Sunday Topic

"A Man After God's Heart" will be the topic of the sermon to be delivered at the 11 a.m. services of the Central Evangelical United Brethren Church, Marcelina and Arlington avenues.

In continuation of the Loyalty Month Emphasis, this Sunday has been designated as Men's Day. The men of the church will share in the services and are charged with promoting interest and attendance.

The youth fellowship of the church will meet Sunday evening at 6:30 under the leadership of Kenneth and Lorraine Zeller. The Central Church Ladies Guild will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 A. midweek service for Bible study and pray meets Wednesday at 7:15 p.m.

City Building Inspector To Address Home Class

"How to Comply with Building Code Requirements when Planning a Home" will be the topic of discussion at the Home Planning class, which meets at 7 this evening in Room 106, Torrance High School. Leading the discussion will be James E. Dresser, Torrance City Building Inspector, widely known authority in residential construction.

The class in Home Planning, under direction of Ivan E. Mann, architectural drafting instructor and former builder, meets every Thursday evening from 7 to 9:30. Specialists in all phases of residential construction will be guest speakers at the weekly sessions. In addition, class time is allotted for actual drafting of house plans by those who wish to take advantage of the excellent drafting equipment provided free of charge.

Junior Teeners Slate Dance at El Retiro Hall

Dances for the Seaside-Riviera Junior Teenagers club will have their full kickoff tomorrow night when the youngsters meet in El Retiro Park hall for dancing from 7:30 until 9:30.

Square dances will be called by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cosby, but the young dancers will be on their own for the waltzes, swing numbers, and jitterbug jazz.

Any junior teenager now in the sixth, seventh, or eighth grade is eligible to join the club. The dances will be held each Friday evening, with the exception of the last Friday of each month.

Farewell Party Surprises Wife Of Navy Chief

Due to leave soon to join her husband in Honolulu, Mrs. Elsie Herwer, 2601 Pacific Coast highway, was honored with a surprise farewell party by members of a special committee of the Waleria Cub Scout Pack 240C on Wednesday evening, October 4.

The party was staged in the home of Mrs. Coy Urquhart, 2325 Sierra street.

Mrs. Herwer's husband is a Chief Mineman in the U. S. Navy stationed in Hawaii.

Before the party, Cubmaster Eugene Kamfonik conducted a Den Mothers meeting to map plans for the Pack meeting to be held October 27. Additional details concerning the meeting will be announced later.

George Bray Promoted On Overseas Assignment

George B. Bray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bray, of 1011 Andreo avenue, was recently promoted to the grade of Private First Class for proficiency in his duties. He is assigned with the 22nd Anti-Aircraft Battalion of the Army of Occupation in the Ryukyus Command.

A former student at Torrance High School, Pfc. Bray enlisted in the Army at Los Angeles in August, 1949 and shipped overseas for a tour of duty in the Far East shortly after completion of his basic training.

Coast Guard Chief Has Hobby Of Collecting Ancient Rifles

Old Dan! Boone himself probably never wielded a trustier long-barreled hunting rifle nor drew a truer aim than does a modern-day Coast Guard Chief Gunner's Mate.

Chief Clemens F. Knox, of 2108 Lincoln avenue and stationed at Coast Guard offices in the Times building, Long Beach, has a pair of rifles that would do credit to any 18th Century woodsman trying to build a home out of wilderness while fighting off hostile Indians, or a Northern soldier blasting away at Confederates during the Civil War. But more than just collecting the old firearms, he knows how to use them, and expertly, too.

EXPERT ON AIM

The Coast Guard veteran of 20 years says that he has been interested in guns and shooting nearly all his life, and exhibits rapt of medals, won principally for his pistol shooting, to prove it. His interest in guns led him to those of early America about two years ago, and shortly after he joined the Long Beach chapter of the California Muzzle Loaders Club. Ever since he's been ramming the powder and shot home, and blasting away at targets in contests between the local Muzzle Loaders clubs. Soon, however, he plans to do some seal deer hunting with his antique firearms.

For being over a century an age, the Chief's old rifles are in marvelous mechanical condition. The curly maple stock on his early American hunting rifle is as beautiful now as it was back in 1790; the steel and mechanism of the old rifle was never in better shape.

MAKES OWN BULLETS

In keeping with tradition of old, Chief Knox ingeniously molds his own dangerous-looking lead balls to be fired by his weapons. It's an exacting job, far to have any accuracy at all, the balls must be perfect in shape and size.

The Chief's curly maple deer and hunting rifle has the smallest bore of any of his muzzle loading weapons, being a .38-caliber. That it's accurate is undeniable after seeing small targets with the bullseye area well peppered from distances of 50 and 100 yards.

Once, while on the Long Beach Muzzle Loaders' firing range, he inadvertently dumped in a double charge of black powder, 120 grains, a large charge in anybody's book. After the ball and powder is rammed home, it's impossible to shake it out, so tightly is it packed. The only thing left to do was to fire the powder-packed rifle. Chief Knox prepared himself for the explosion and pulled the trigger. Fire and smoke roared out of the muzzle, and the Chief went rolling; no damage was done, however, to the rifle or the man behind it.

MORE THAN ONE HOBBY

But it seems that firing old guns isn't his only avocation, though this foremost. He recently completed construction on a 27-inch hydroplane speedboat, equipped with a powerful little one-cylinder engine capable of developing one and a half horsepower while running at 18,000 revolutions per minute. He's never turned the boat loose as yet, but guarantees that she'll do around 100 knots.

Unless he has just acquired something new, his other hobbies consist of constructing finely machined steam, air, and flame engines — which might lead to a full story on that alone — and fishing.

Who knows? — inasmuch as Chief Knox will soon be transferred to Coast Guard offices in Honolulu, maybe he'll add surfboard riding to his full list of hobbies.

Torrance Service Clubs to Hold Joint Meeting

Although it has been only six months since the Torrance service clubs held their second annual joint dinner meeting, the clubs will gather again tonight at 7 in the Woman's clubhouse for the third annual joint meeting.

The seeming impatience to get on with the affair was explained this week when the hosting Optimist Club announced that the four clubs—Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and Optimists—had decided to make the joint meetings a semiannual event.

About 150 service club members are expected to hear guest speaker John S. Grover talk on the situation in the Far East.

Grover, who is chief editorial writer for the Los Angeles Mirror, spent several years in the Orient, his latest sojourn there being from 1942 until last year.

The dinner will be served by the Woman's Club.

Advance Gifts Division Starts Chest Campaign

Members of the Advance Gifts Division of the Community Chest began calling on Torrance residents this week in an effort to increase the pledges for the 1950-51 Red Feather drive, Campaign Chairman Dean L. Sears, announced yesterday.

"The $300,000 which has been included in the total Chest goal this year for services to boys and girls in the armed forces must be raised primarily by a higher level of giving on the part of contributors," according to Mayor Bob Haggard, chairman of the Advance Gifts Division.

Waleria Scouts Enter Camporee

Scoutmaster William J. Lizut reported this week that 16 boys had registered during the past two weeks for the Waleria Scout Troop 240, and that he hoped to have about 10 Tenderfoot Scouts in the very near future.

At a meeting last week at the home of Coy Urquhart, representative of the Steelworkers local plans for the forthcoming year were discussed. The Steelworkers are sponsoring the scout troop in Waleria.

To start the troop out right, a Camporee has been slated for Saturday and Sunday of this week at the Lomita Park. Charles Dresser, assistant area commissioner, explained the workings of a camporee to the scouts at last week's meeting. The Camporee consists of various outdoor competitive tests.

At the kickoff meeting of the Advance Gifts Division, held Monday, members of the division were told how important the funds were to the scouting program in Torrance by Mrs. Ray Neely, of 1621 Iris avenue, who is a Girl Scout leader at the Fern Avenue School.

Mrs. Neely, who was accompanied by her young daughter, told the volunteer workers that the funds made available to the Girl Scout program here were the main factor in keeping the Torrance scouting program active. There are 21 Girl Scout troops in Torrance, she said, and they embrace a total of 322 girls.
