Hard Luck Harry Out to Mar Jinx

Hard-luck Harry Stockman, who has been tabbed as Allen Heath's shadow in the mighty midget ranks, gets another chance to overcome the Heath jinx Sunday night, Aug. 26, at Carrell Speedway.

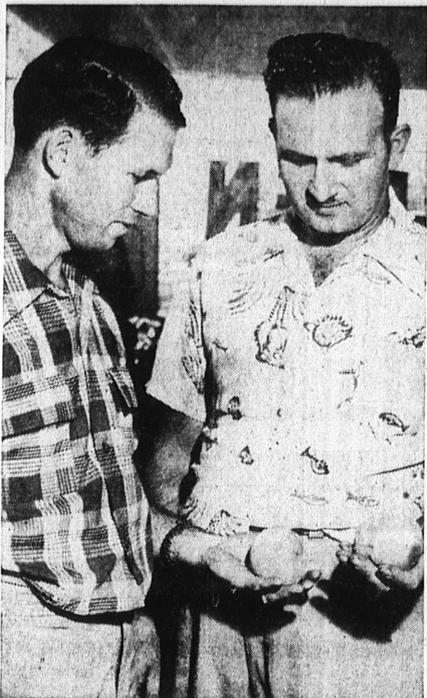

Stockman, second to Heath in many a midget duel this season, will be among the many URA pilots seeking the elusive checkered flag at the Gardena smokepath. The midget duel, first Sunday night show of the season, will be over Carroll's famous "B" track.

A near-capacity house is expected to watch the URA pilots in the 30-lapper, Johnny Garrett, Billy Cantrell, Frank Brewer, Ed Lockhardt and Hal Minyard are among the aces who figure to be on hand.

Time trials go on at 6:30 p.m., with the first scheduled event, a 3-lap trophy dash, getting the program under way at 8:30. Youngsters under 12 get in for free if accompanied by an adult at the Carrell raceway.

Manager of New Market Man of Several Talents

Chuck Barber, the young manager of the new Save More Market at 182nd street and Prairie avenue, is a man of many talents, a discussion with him revealed this week.

In addition to being a veteran of the market business for a number of years, including two years as manager of Wong's Pioneer Market in Norwalk, Barber is studying to be a minister and expects appointment to a church in Monterey, Mexico next June 18, he said.

The manager has been attending bible school designed to train young ministers for some time, and will complete his studies in the near future.

Barber also studied printing in college, he said, and spent some time in the printing department of a Southern California newspaper.

NEW SAVE MORE MARKET
... Grand Opening Stated for Weekend

New Market Slates Opening Over Week-End

Scheduling a grand opening for their new market at 182nd street and Prairie avenue today, tomorrow and Saturday are two young veterans of the grocery and produce business, Andrew Dulgarian and Jack Ballard.

The new store, which boasts 3600 square feet of floor space, will be managed by Chuck Barber, another young veteran of the grocery business. To celebrate the official opening, the two young businessmen plan to give away 10 baskets of groceries during the evening next Saturday, they said.

Featured at the new market will be leading brands of canned goods, meats and household supplies. The store will also carry lines of light hardware and kitchen supplies, according to Barber.

Luer's ready-sliced meats are featured in the self-service delicatessen counter along with other packaged goods ranging from cheeses to tortillas. Two butchers are behind the meat counters to serve customers. Vernon Brick is the meat department manager.

The two owners are at present the operators of the produce departments of two other stores in the North Torrance-Landvale area, they said. Dulgarian has been in business for himself since 1941, he said. The store will be open daily except Sunday.
