Carson Cracker Barrel

Carsonites Caught In Mad Party Spin

It's Christmastime again, and all around Carsonites give evidence that they're looking forward to the old boy's visit with gay windows, and yards. Indeed, it looks as though the Carson Chamber of Commerce is going to find it hard to pick a winner in the contest this year.

As far as I can tell, most of the people here spent the week at parties—Mrs. Roy Carter, 21325 Caroldale, invited her neighbors and friends to a brunch last Wednesday morning and all had a merry time over the coffee cups. It is especially heartening to be able to report that Mrs. Jesse Luten, victim of an auto accident last week, felt well enough to attend. Others sharing in the fun were Mmes. C. Wittenburg, V. Geherky, Prosser, R. Minchow, W. Wright, James Campbell, Bragg, and J. P. Wright.

One nice thing about the parties is that they're all different, with two exceptions. And these were birthday parties for little girls. December's children always have a sort of rough time of it with Christmas so close! Our first birthday girl is Alice Johnston, 216th St., who was nine years old Dec. 7. The Christmas motif was followed in decorating the cake and favors, which were little Christmas baskets. Those joining Alice in playing games and singing Christmas carols were Bonnie London, Carolyn Taylor, Judy Buck, Mary Jones, Tanya Wall, Mary Jones, Beverly Taylor, Judy and Maria Arnold, Connie Christiansa, Claudine and Donna Cluff, Evelyn Jones, Jerry Owens, Sharon and Juanita Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Youngblood, Mr. and Mrs. Richard London, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Williams.

The second little girl to have the birthday song sung for her was Joyce Morioka, 621 W. 215th St. She was seven years old Dec. 14. Since the weatherman was so cooperative, and the day so beautiful, the children played games outside, as well as games of bingo, horseshoes and other indoor games. Those attending were Sandra, Lana, and Emily Jacks, Linda, Carol and La Donna Walker, Sachiko and Katherine Ishihara, Libby and Kelsey Barken and sister Ann and brother Gary Morioka.

And in the middle of these festivities, come the notes from Carson St. School.

Compromise On West Basin Water Sought

A special committee will seek to work out a compromise agreement between cities in the county's West Basin area as to allocation of water from the dwindling supplies available. Engineers and attorneys will serve on the committee under the agreement reached Friday at a State Building session of the West Basin Water Assn., and spokesmen for the California Water Service Co., the Palos Verdes Water Co., and other similar organizations.

Behind the attempt at compromise in order to save long and costly litigation is a Superior Court suit brought to determine water rights. Water tables in the West Basin have dropped over the last few years as population growths brought increased use. Hawthorne and Inglewood would suffer most if the court orders a recommended curtailment, since these municipalities do not belong to the Metropolitan Water District. Torrance would be able to draw all the water it needs from the Metropolitan lines.

Others in the critical zone include Manhattan Beach, Palos Verdes Estates, Redondo Beach, Gardena, El Segundo, and parts of the City of Los Angeles. These latter cities are all members of the MWD and could augment their water supplies from the Colorado River.

Thompson Heads New Police Revolver Club

Police Lt. A. S. Thompson, 1418 Engracia Ave., has been elected president of the Torrance Police Revolver Club, it was announced here this week. Instructor for the newly-chartered club is H. Paul, range master of the Torrance Pistol Range. Officer Gus Rethwisch, 1836 Reynosa Dr., is secretary and Chief J. H. Stroh, 1732 Watson Ave., is treasurer.

The new shooting club joins thousands of other clubs, similarly chartered by the National Rifle Assn., in the promotion of competitive shooting and the teaching of safe firearms handling for all in the community. Members will compete for firing honors in a series of registered tournaments on the club's range in the near future.

Pacific Hills Developer Heads Home Institute

K. Sande Semness, developer of the Pacific Hills home area, was elected president of the Home Builders Institute of Los Angeles at a meeting last week in the Biltmore. He succeeds Mark A. Throsson, of Van Nuys. Semness has been active in the Institute for a number of years. He is currently constructing a large housing project in Central California.
