

Seasiders Visit, Are Visited Over Easter

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Holstin of 5121 Zakon Rd. spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Holstin of Tawhome. They had a family reunion dinner and an Easter egg hunt for the children. Prizes were awarded to the child with the most and the child with the least eggs. Also, one for the books. Merle said that she and Floyd might become aunt and uncle before the day was over. We don't know what to expect, but be it a boy or a girl, we say congratulations to the parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gansen of 5120 Zakon Rd. had Easter company. Visiting with them over the holidays was Josephine Gansen of Los Angeles. Miss Gansen is the younger daughter of the Gansen family.

Rev. Taylor of Bindewald conducted Easter Sunrise Service beyond the Seaside Elementary on Sharynne Lane. Approximately 150 of the Seaside Heights and Ranchos area attended the beautiful services.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. A. White, school teacher in Westchester, is ill. Do so hope you will be feeling better before long, Marty, and can yell hello at us across the back yard fence again.

Jo Edman has informed us that the Seaside PTA is having a paper drive the second week of May. So save your old papers, folks, and someone will be around to pick them up.

Miss Doris Frankel, sixth grade teacher at Seaside Elementary, took two of her students on a tour of the Farmer's Market to obtain information for their class. The boys, Gary Leuwig and John Edman, met

Miss Frankel at the downtown Biltmore after they had gone into Los Angeles on the big red bus. Of course, that in itself was a thrill to the boys as neither had ridden on a bus before by himself.

More news next time, so leaving you with this thought... While driving, being legally right will not necessarily save your life. Use courtesy.

California Kids More Likely To Be Hurt in Traffic

California's bumper crop of healthy active children coupled with climate that lets them play outdoors most of the year adds up to more chances for youngsters to get hurt in traffic, the California Highway Patrol noted recently.

Since the danger is so great and children often don't know the safe thing to do, the Patrol said it was largely grownups' duty to look out for them.

Many accidents occur in which children are legally wrong, but the Patrol pointed out that freedom from legal blame doesn't free a driver from the moral responsibility that older and more mature judgment carries.

The Patrol said safety instruction for children was chiefly a job for parents.

For example, if children customarily walk to and from school, parents should accompany them a few times to determine the safest route.

It's also up to parents to teach children where to play safely, how to cross streets, what traffic signs and signals mean and how to use skates, bikes and other wheel toys properly.

One of the most lasting ways to teach safety to children, the Patrol said, is for parents to set good examples for them. If a policy of "do as I say, not as I do" results in an unsafe act by a child with subsequent death or injury in a traffic accident, the blame rests squarely with the parents, the Patrol concluded.
