His ailment has been diagnosed as anterior coronary condition. Mrs. Lee said in a letter to Mrs. Frederick Cook, 2207 W. Carson St.

Lee will be confined to the hospital for several weeks and then must undergo a rest period at home, his family has been informed.

Open Meeting Bill Passes House, 63-0

Assembly Bill, 339, the Freedom of Information bill prohibiting secret meetings of public bodies passed the State Assembly on April 8 by a 63-0 vote. The bill, prohibiting the exclusion of the press or the public from any meeting of a governmental body at which a vote or any other poll of members is taken, does however permit the discussion of personnel problems in executive sessions.

While the bill prohibits closed door sessions it does not mean that "agenda" meetings are a thing of the past. Political observers expressed the opinion that such bodies as the Torrance City Council, Planning Commission, Water Board, and other public bodies could conduct "agenda" meetings behind closed doors providing no vote nor canvassing of the body was conducted.

A related bill, AB 1160, which would declare that all public records would be open to public inspection wound up amid considerable confusion as a dozen or more state agencies attempted to tack on various amendments. The shower of proposals and counter proposals so confused the committee that the members referred it to a subcommittee of one, Assemblyman Vincent Thomas who represents Torrance for rewriting.
