

Eight New Instructors Join Staff at El Camino College

Four new full-time instructors have joined the faculty of El Camino College in response to increased enrollment needs. It was announced recently by Dr. William H. Harless, director of instruction. Also supplementing the college staff are four part-time instructors, all in the field of radio.

Frank R. Major, joining the faculty in the field of biological sciences, is a native of Utah and comes to Southern California from Burley, Idaho, where he served as a high school teacher. He gained his MA from Utah State Agricultural College. Major, his wife and three children are making their home in Torrance.

Donald W. Hein, a native of Minnesota, will teach mathematics at El Camino. He comes to the college from Pipestone, Minn., where he served as a high school principal before accepting new duties here.

Now residing in Lawndale, Hein completed work for his master of arts degree at the University of Minnesota, and later obtained his degree as doctor of education at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Coming to El Camino as wrestling coach and instructor was completed at DePaul University. Robert F. Walters, J. Hengstler of Manhattan, whose bachelor of science degree was awarded by the University of California at Berkeley; and James R. Watson, who received his bachelor of arts three years ago until the close of the degree from UCLA.

Yes received his master of arts degree from DePaul University in Chicago. He is married and resides in Manhattan Beach with his wife and one child. New part-time radio instructors are Henry A. Jay, who received his bachelor of engineering from USC; George V. McMahon, whose work for the master of science in engineering was completed at DePaul University; Robert F. Walters, whose bachelor of science degree was awarded by the University of California at Berkeley; and James R. Watson, who received his bachelor of arts three years ago until the close of the degree from UCLA.
