Lomita Divided Over Zoning Issue County Plan 'Aims to Please All'

Two opposing factions, each stating that community opinion is behind it, were locked in grim combat this week over the zoning, or not zoning, of Lomita.

The Lomita Committee for Zoning feels that the town should be zoned to prevent "junk" movers from bringing in old houses, freeway rejects, and ancient army barracks and setting them up anywhere there is land available.

The Lomita Property Owners and Registered Voters Assoc., which opposes zoning, wants restrictions against obnoxious businesses, according to George Sands, president of the group, but opposes the strict zoning of the entire area.

"All I've worked for would be for nothing," Sands has stated. "A lot of the people around here moved to Lomita because of the freedom out here. We don't want to lose it."

Plan Called "Liberal"

"It's a very liberal zoning plan," says Tim McCormick, chairman of the Committee for Zoning. "We're trying to give everyone what they want."

McCormick has tentative zoning maps on the wall of his office at 1733 Pacific Coast Hwy., for the public's inspection. The county has separate tentative zoning plans for north and south Lomita and the areas are to be handled separately.

McCormick hopes to put the completed zoning plan before the Board of Supervisors in September—but residents have plenty of time to change the tentative maps before then, he says.

All-Day Meeting Set

There will be an all-day meeting at Narbonne High School early in September, then the plan will go to the Regional Planning Commission for pros and cons, and from thence, it will go to the Board.

The whole of Lomita is now zoned M-5, or unclassified. This means that, for all practical purposes, Lomita is unzoned, McCormick says that Lomita, being one of the few unzoned communities in the county, could bear the brunt of the attack when movers begin looking for sites on which to build low-cost, shoddy home projects.

"If we don't get zoned, I'll sell my land and move my business out," McCormick says.

Others have different opinions, however.

Canvass Town

Sands, the leader of the opposition to zoning, says that he and his fellow Association members have canvassed certain sections of Lomita to get a cross section of people's opinions on zoning.

He says that his survey shows that the majority do not want zoning.

"I personally covered Narbonne to Eshelman, the north side of 250th, two blocks on Lomita Blvd., Eshelman to the city limits, north side, and 101 Hwy. to the end of Eshelman on the south end. Two blocks on Pennsylvania Ave. have been covered, plus the south end of Narbonne Ave., the south end of Pennsylvania Ave., 241st St. on the west end, 240th St. east of Narbonne, and parts of Ebony Lane," Sands said.

McCormick Counters

McCormick counters this with the statement "60 to 70 people a day pass through my office and they are all convinced, by the time they leave, that zoning is necessary. There will be open hearings before the Board until everybody is satisfied."

"There are 20 people in town holding up zoning," the realtor stated. "They want the town to stay the way it was when there were 300 people here."

On the subject of changing zones to suit everyone, Sands comments "Mr. John Richerson (county regional planner) can only recommend zone changes, he has no authority to guarantee them. People who ask for their zones to be changed leave the meetings satisfied. When these maps get to the Planning Commission, they may not approve all of the zoning the way it is on the tentative maps."

Group Meets

The Property Owners met last night at the home of Charles Anderson, 25213 Ebony Ln., to discuss their own zoning plan. Its main features include more freedom for business and homeowners and local control of zoning, according to Sands.

The plan would place business houses in zones similar to the county's but the raising of chickens and other "hobbies" would be permitted in residential areas.

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY . . . Capt. R. F. Karney, chief of the Lennox Substation of the County Sheriff's Office, and Tom Jones, commander of the Lomita Post of the VFW, put up a sign designating the Lomita VFW Hall as an Emergency Assembly Center. The building will be used in case of emergency or disaster as an assembly area for off-duty sheriff's deputies if the main station is cut off. It will serve the southern jurisdiction of the Lennox Substation.

Sailors Visit Puget Sound

A number of local navy men visited Puget Sound recently with the 55-ship Task Force 12 to take part in the annual Seattle "Sea Fair" and visit Pacific Northwest cities.

Among the local participants were Ralph G. Keller, seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Keller of 1411 Elm Ave.; John L. Bullock, seaman, husband of Mrs. Jacqueline J. Bullock of 1920 222nd St.; Harold L. Dillon, musician's mate third class, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Dillon of 26315 Eshelman, Lomita; Malcolm A. Godden, seaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Baxley, 26026 Apian Way, Lomita.

Also Bayliss E. Murphy, chief commissaryman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Murphy, of Lomita; Ernest E. Roberts, aviation boatswain's mate, husband of Mrs. Anne Roberts, of 25332 Senator Ave., Harbor City; and Roland J. Goudreau, fireman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Goudreau of 17320 Glenburn Ave.

DAD SAYS WE'RE ALL SET FOR YEARS AND YEARS!

Our new automatic GAS water heater is a kind with a 10-year Warranty Plan!

You can be all set for years and years of trouble-free service, too. Just be sure, when you buy a new water heater, that it's an automatic gas water heater with a 10-year Warranty Plan. That way, you assure yourself of a top-quality appliance—one that's built of heavyweight steel—one that's been made corrosion resistant. Your plumber dealer or your Gas Company will gladly give you the details on the 10-year Warranty Plan.

Be sure of the right size. Choose an automatic gas water heater big enough to keep up with your family's present and future demands. The chart at right shows how big a tank you should have. Be sure it's a gas water heater. Why? For two good reasons—gas heats water 3 times faster than any other fuel and it costs you less, too.
