MOVING AHEAD . . . This view of the sprawling Shell Chemical Plant gives indication of the corporation's contribution to Torrance industry. Shell recently bought the plant on Figueroa St., and now is in full production. Among things processed there is synthetic rubber. Plant has been scene of numerous tours since its recent opening. Manager of the Shell facility in Torrance is Maarten Voogd.

50 Businessmen View Shell Oil Plant Facilities

More than 50 Torrance businessmen and city officials toured the new Shell Chemical Corp. Plant Wednesday as a highlight of Chemical Progress Week.

The tour was initiated by Maarten Voogd, manager of the recently-purchased plant.

The visitors met for lunch Wednesday at a local restaurant and then traveled to the plant for a guided tour. They were taken throughout the structure and shown the processing of synthetic rubber.

Following the tour, the group was treated to refreshments in the plant cafeteria.

Tom Watson, manager of the Torrance Chamber, echoed the thoughts of the visitors when he said the group was impressed with the Shell facilities.

"Every finished product was boxed and readied for shipment to all parts of the world, and the words 'Torrance, California' were stamped on all outgoing shipments, which impressed us," he said.

Each visitor received a small kit of souvenir Shell products following the tour.

Stan Williamson, plant superintendent, and Jerry Prior, industrial relations director, also assisted Voogd in preparation for the affair.

The Shell Plant also hosted newspaper personnel from the area last Tuesday, in a similar tour.
