

Lumber Yard Robbed
One-foot by six inch boards, 150 feet of them, were stolen from an open storage yard next door to 1233 W. Ocean Ave. Keystone, over the week end, Lennox station deputies were told by Charles E. Garrison of 1524 W. 218th St.

Gasoline Disappears
Thieves made off Saturday night with 50 gallons of gasoline in two Army-type gas cans taken from farm tractors at 339 W. Ocean Ave., Keystone, according to Bruno Adamoli, who reported the loss to Lennox sheriff's station.

Shell Names Sales Head
Richard W. Campbell has been promoted to the position of manager of the Los Angeles district of Shell Chemical Corp. It was announced today by G. W. Huldrum, Jr., general sales manager. He replaces J. E. Toevs, recently appointed sales manager of the company's newly-created Synthetic Rubber Sales Division. Campbell was formerly senior technical salesman in Los Angeles. Campbell, a native of Berkeley, attended the University of Cincinnati before joining Shell Chemical Corp. in 1947 as a technologist in Los Angeles. He was promoted to senior technical salesman in the marketing-distribution department in 1954.

School Job Exams Set
Exams will be given in June to fill positions in Torrance schools. Certificated positions are open at all levels, including shop and homemaking. Secondary positions open include instrumental music, metal shop, foreign language and mathematics. Openings for classified personnel include clerical, custodial groundsman and cafeteria. A clerical examination will be given at Torrance High School on June 11 to those who filed applications prior to June 2. The test will be in room 202. Exams for cafeteria workers will be given June 22. Last date to file is June 15. An exam for cafeteria managers will be given June 23, with last date to file June 15.

Glazed Glances
By Barney Glazer
The oft-repeated Chain Letter has made another appearance, this one promising relief and happiness for the tired and bored working man. The idea of bundling up your wife and sending her to the man whose name appears on the top of the list is not new but we like the remark that soon you will receive 16,748 women, some of them bound to be a big improvement over what you formerly had. There is the usual warning to have faith and not break the chain; one man did and got his own wife back. Postscripts include these: "Don't send a copy of this letter to Liberae. You might get his brother George" and "At the time of writing, a friend of mine had received 365 women. They buried him yesterday and it took 3 under-takers 36 hours to get the smile off his face."

One of our readers confesses to an urge to drive a Cadillac and he has finally realized his ambition. He just got himself a job in a parking lot. . . . Remember the nostalgic memory-opener about the small boys who were told to mow the lawn the next day and they all prayed that it would rain? There's a modern version with our steamrolled teenagers of today praying that the mower runs out of gas. . . . A harassed husband who had just returned from a finance company where he had applied for a loan, walked over to his bank, withdrew his last few dollars and remarked to the bank teller: "That's what I like about you. Not because you ever asked me what I intend to do with all that money I've withdrawn."

Today we quote our fellow columnist. . . . Glen Ingles' tale of the man about to be hanged who was asked how he felt about the rope, to which he replied: "I'd just as soon skip it!" . . . Art Ryon's story about the property owner who asked a real estate broker what kind of folks bought the house next door, and the broker's reply: "A man and woman with three children and one in nursery." . . . And Bob "ROVIN' AROUND" Vincent's yarn about the guide in an aircraft plant who was explaining an intricate machine which was started by simply pushing a button and from there it completed its countless jobs all by itself. Which prompted one of the visitors to ask why they didn't invent something that would also push the button automatically and thus do away with the man, whereupon the guide howled: "Quiet! I'm the guy who pushes the button!"

A male motorist asked a woman driver to push his stalled car, explaining to her: "I have an automatic transmission, so you have to reach 35 miles per hour to get me going." Patently, the male driver waited for the woman to come up from behind and give him a shove. Finally, becoming worried and wondering whatever happened to her, he turned around and found out. She was coming at him—at 35 miles per hour! . . . Watch out when your mother-in-law says she's coming to visit you for the holidays. My mother-in-law has been with us for New Year's, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas. . . . Bob Martin, Highland Park News - Herald editor, heard Doug Edwards bloop it on TV as follows: The heavyweight champ, Marcy Rockiano! . . . So that's why they call the weaker sex the "stronger sex." It's due to the weakness of the stronger sex for the weaker sex.

Next time you go to the polls to pick one senator out of three candidates, have the consolation that all three of them can't be elected. . . . How to get yourself out of a tight spot next time a friend asks you to guess his wife's age. Just say: "Her beauty makes her look 25, but her intelligence makes her seem 55" . . . Car sickness: That's the nausea you feel when the car payment is due. . . . Ask any blond in uniform if he likes blondes, brunettes or red heads and his answer is always: "Yes" . . . Tips for tired business men: Ask your local cocktail bar to obtain a record for their jukebox that
